

THE FIRST DISTRICT PRESS SPEAKS OF OLLIE M. JAMES

Candidates to fill Henry Allen's congressional shoes are hopping up like toad frogs after a summer shower. Down in the First it will be a one-man race. 'Rah for Ollie! —Princeton Banner.

Ollie James has announced himself a candidate for congress in the First district, subject to the action of the Democratic party. Ollie is all right and deserves all Democracy can give him.—Western Argus, Frankfort.

Since N. W. Utley has withdrawn from the congressional race Ollie M. James has the field to himself. It has been rumored that Sam Crossland would oppose Mr. James, however we know nothing definite as regards Mr. Crossland becoming a candidate. Furthermore, we don't believe he would be in it were he to run. Ollie James has done too much for the interest of the party to be turned down. This is the first time he has ever asked for the suffrage of the voters of this district, and it is nothing but right he should have it.—Ballard Yeoman.

In this issue of the Banner will be found the announcement of Hon. Ollie M. James, of Marion, as a candidate for congress from the First district to succeed Hon. Chas. K. Wheeler.

Big Ollie is too well known to need introduction anywhere in the First district. For ten or fifteen years he has been heard in every campaign in the interest of Democracy. Every Democrat in Livingston county knows him and all recognize his ability and his fitness for a seat in the National Congress.

Mr. James is one of the best speakers in Kentucky; he is always ready for a fight when Democracy is assailed, and he has never yet failed to respond when called upon by his party. He has met in joint debate some of the ablest Republicans in the land and has always proven equal to the emergency.

Mr. James' candidacy is meeting with great encouragement throughout the district, and the man who beats him can say he has had a race. He has a large following in this county, and his friends are already pushing his candidacy.—Smithland Banner.

The announcement of Hon. O. M. James as a candidate for congress from the First district to succeed the incumbent, C. K. Wheeler, will be received with genuine satisfaction by the Democrats of Calloway county. Mr. James is in the race this time to stay and win, and if there ever was any man who is more deserving of the position to which he aspires, a man who has done more for his party in the same number of years and received less for it than Mr. James we have no knowledge of who that man is. Every Democrat in Calloway county knows him, recognizes his sterling worth, his ability, and have long since made up their mind to send him to congress the first opportunity.

Ollie James is not old in years—only 33—but he is gray in the service of his party. There is not in all this congressional district a man who is any better qualified to go to Washington as a representative of our people. He is a Democrat in line with the great majority of his party, loyal and enthusiastic for the great principles set forth in its platforms, an ardent working supporter of its nominees.

He has been in the fight for Bryan, Goebel, Beckham and every other contest where there was a demand for his assistance. He has traveled old Kentucky from Mills' Point to Big Sandy in the interest of his party, been over more territory and made more speeches than any man in the state and has never been rewarded. The Ledger is wedded to the belief that the Democratic party is loyal to those who are loyal to it, and can only consider Mr. James election but a slight compensation for his service. Further than this we believe the Democrats of Calloway endorse this same sentiment and will cast their votes for Hon. Ollie M. James of Crittenden county for congress.—Murray Ledger.

By authority the News-Democrat announces Hon. Ollie M. James, of Crittenden county, as a candidate for congress in the First district of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

No young man, or old one either for that matter, is more widely known among the voters of this state than Mr. James. Before he had attained his majority he was on the stump, making speeches for the Democratic party, and he has been at it ever since. In every campaign, state or national, he has done valiant and effective service. He has spoken in every district and in nearly every county in the state and never without results.

In 1896 as chairman of the Kentucky delegation to the Chicago convention, which nominated William Jennings Bryan, he was the youngest man who ever held that honor in any national convention. In 1900 he presided over the Democratic state convention which sent delegates to Kansas City—the youngest man ever chosen as temporary chairman by a state convention in Kentucky. He was a successful practicing attorney at the bar in Marion before he passed his 23d birthday. He has distinguished himself in his profession as well as in politics. He is brainy, high spirited and well schooled.

Mr. James will at once undertake an active canvass of the district. An aggressive campaigner, a forceful and trained speaker and a seasoned political manager, it goes without saying that he will make a strong bid for the honor of representing the Gibraltar district in Congress.—Paducah News-Democrat.

In this issue of the Courier will be found the formal announcement of Hon. Ollie James of Crittenden county for congress.

This announcement will be met with the hearty support of every Democrat in Livingston county is not questionable.

His untiring and valuable service in behalf of the Democratic party of the First Congressional district has been recognized for several years, and his honesty and zeal have won for him such tower of strength as no man in the party ranks seems willing to attack in his candidacy to succeed Hon. Charles K. Wheeler in the lower house of congress.

There is not a man in the Gibraltar district today better posted on state and national affairs than Ollie James. He is only 33 years of age. Ever since he was appointed to the position of page in the lower house of the General Assembly of Kentucky about 1888, when Hon. John K. Hendrick was state senator from this district, and Hon. W. R. Bush, deceased, representative, he has taken an unusual active interest in politics, and for several years past has been the leader of his party in his home county. At present he is a member of the state central committee. His fight for Bryan, Goebel, and Beckham and for the nominees of the party in his own district has made his name familiar in every home in the old Gibraltar.

No district convention has assembled for years that Ollie was not there to represent Crittenden, and he did it creditably, too.

That he will receive the unanimous support of the Democrats of his district for the office he is now seeking there now seems to be no question.

For one, Livingston county will rally to his support.—Smithland Courier.

Elsewhere in this issue of the Tale of Two Cities can be seen the picture of our next congressman—Hon. Ollie M. James—one of the biggest hearted and biggest brained Democrats in all that galaxy of young Democrats who are now piloting our ship of state.

Since a mere child he has been fighting the battles of his party, that, too, without office or compensation, and reckless or foolhardy, indeed, would be the speaker who would seek to measure lances with him in debating political questions, and when by fate the leaders of the opposition have crossed his path they have always found him worthy of their steel.

Young, ambitious and brave, a profound lawyer and polished gentleman, with a heart in proportion to his stature, he today has more true, loyal friends than any other man in public life in Kentucky.

His ability as a statesman has long been recognized by the leaders of the Democratic party of the State and Nation, and his advice in their councils has been as valuable and as much sought after as has been his powerful and convincing oratory upon the hustings.

For more than a decade he has been going up and down the state from one end to the other, preaching the gospel truths of Democracy, and often his aid and counsel have led the party to victory in other states, so that now it seems but meet that his friends and the party he has served so faithfully should, with one acclaim, present him the nomination without opposition.

Outside of the gratification it would afford us to see our warm, personal friend thus honored, the old Gibraltar district would continue to be ably represented, by a man in every way worthy of the distinguished honor.

Remembering well the valiant services rendered by Mr. James in the interests of the Democracy of Lyon county whenever the party has stood in danger, and recognizing his ability and peculiar fitness for the high position, the people of our county, almost to a man should and will gladly rally to his support.—Eddyville Tale of Two Cities.

We are authorized in this issue of the Record to make the formal announcement of Ollie M. James' candidacy to represent the old Gibraltar district in the next congress of the United States, subject as a matter of course to the action of the Democratic party. Since the beginning of his career as an orator and a Democrat, this distinguished gentleman has been a great favorite in this county, and if the announcement shall create in other counties of this district the universal joy it will excite in this, his nomination is almost assured from the beginning, and his election a foregone conclusion.

Mr. James is a young man yet, on the sunny side of thirty, but old in his knowledge of the shortcomings of the Republican party and has fought more hard battles for the Democracy than any man of his age—or perhaps of any age—who has ever lived in the State.

Nor has this labor been performed without a great sacrifice. He is not a man of fortune. On the contrary, like most young men of the district, has been compelled to rely upon his own exertions for his personal support and comfort, and the means that enables him to obey the calls of his party from Crittenden to Guyandot. He is a fine lawyer; an advocate of unusual ability, and his professional services are in great requisition in almost all the courts of southwestern Kentucky, but has been compelled to turn over to other lawyers some of the heaviest fees of the courts to enable him to address the Democracy today in Louisville, and tomorrow, perhaps in Lexington, Cynthiana or Maysville.

Called by the Democracy of the State to make the campaign with Gov. Beckham as Senator Blackburn was called to accompany Gov. Goebel, his speeches are said to have commanded the largest crowds and excited the most healthy enthusiasm of any speeches that were ever made in the State, not excepting the campaign of Judge Grace and Oscar Turner in the Old Gibraltar, or John O. Breckinridge and ex-Gov. Letcher in the Lexington district.

There are a number of other distinguished gentlemen of worth and prominence spoken of, and notwithstanding the election is a long way off as yet, should a small proportion of the goodly number spoken of conclude to try their metal with James, we may reasonably look forward to a contest that will be remembered by the boys of today when the accumulation of years shall have numbered them with the old men of the district.—Cadiz Record.

It is our pleasant privilege to make formal announcement this week that the Hon. Ollie James of Crittenden county, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress in this district.

Mr. James is so very well known to a majority of our readers that we feel that it is hardly necessary to call attention to his claims upon the good favor of the Democratic voters. While he has been in the public eye for many years this is the first time he has asked for a public office. He has been content in past years to give his invaluable services to his party in the state and nation, and his voice has been heard in every campaign for a decade or more, urging the voters to support the Democratic candidates and stand squarely upon the Democratic platforms. He was one of Mr. Bryan's most trusted friends and advisors, both in 1896 and 1900, and in the State campaigns he has rendered services that his dearest enemies do not underrate, and which his own party places the highest estimate upon. He has always stood ready to do the bidding of his party and no call upon him has ever been made in vain. We of Hickman county have especial reasons to know and appreciate this fact, for in 1897, when the hardest local fight the Democracy ever had to make was on our hands, and when the average politician outside the county was little inclined to mix himself up in the fight, Ollie

James came here and boldly took his stand with the hard pressed Democratic committee and the nominees for the county offices, and by his incisive and fearless utterances on the stump brought many wavering Democrats to see their duty.

Such has ever been his way. At the Chicago convention in 1896, he was one of the first to grasp the situation and note the inevitable trend of events, and his giant form led the triumphal march that preceded and assured the nomination of Mr. Bryan for president. We shall never forget the scene. Bearing aloft the banner of Kentucky, conspicuous in all that wild throng, Ollie James stamped the convention to Bryan.

He is not one of the trimmers who waits to see in what direction the tide of popular opinion is flowing. He acts promptly upon conviction.

He is an able lawyer, a profound student of history, abreast of the day and impressed with its demands and his consequent duty.

In all things open, fair and honorable, he has never been involved in any questionable transaction, either of a political or private nature. He is the friend of the honest voter, and resorts to no tricks nor schemes of the politician to mislead or misrepresent the will or the interests of the Democratic masses.

Occupying the conspicuous place that he does in his party, he will make this district a distinguished and able and faithful representative in congress, if elected, and we commend his claims to the fair and impartial consideration of all Democrats of the 1st district.—Clinton Democrat.

STATE INSTITUTIONS.

In Splendid Condition, Says Representative Pogue.

DEAR PRESS: The session is drawing rapidly to a close; only twenty-five working days remain, but hereafter we will hold two sittings on each Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, by which we hope to dispose of much "reported" work.

The first event of the week was the trip to Lexington, which was a very enjoyable occasion indeed. While a great many of us demurred to the proposition in the outset, we feel that the information secured as to the state institutions there in a great measure recompensed for the time lost from active legislation.

We were met at the depot by a large delegation of Lexington's best citizens and escorted to the city square, where we marched between the burnished muskets of the state guard and cadets of the state college, in whose ranks we saw with pleasure the pleasant faces of Albert Crider of Marion and Lal Threlkeld of Salem.

Next the electric cars carried us to the A. and M. College, where our coming was welcomed by the booming cannon of Battery B. Seated within the commodious chapel of that historic institution we listened to warm words of welcome by President Patterson and Senator Embury Allen. Col. Colson, Rep. Baird and Uncle Doc Brown responded for the legislature. We were escorted through the various departments of the school, and feel that we are justified in saying that the state should be proud of her state college; but were pained to think that so few of her worthy sons and daughters found their way into this great school, compared to the great number who go elsewhere and pay tuition, while the state so graciously extends them welcome.

Next we found ourselves within the great dining hall of the eastern asylum, where a splendid luncheon was awaiting the hungry solons. There was no filibustering, no useless delay, but the main question was disposed of without amendment. A tour of the many wards showed that the twelve hundred unfortunates confined there were as comfortably and healthily as could be expected, while every place seemed to be clean, and perfect discipline prevailed.

A visit to the Reform school, situated six miles from the city, disclosed the fact that the school is one of the most worthy institutions of the state. There many juvenile offenders are reclaimed and made useful, respectable citizens.

The banquet was the last, but not the least, feature of the visit. It was on this occasion, that each member of the legislature tried to best represent his people. That they did so was attested by the rapidity with which the delicious viands vanished from the festal board. Nearly three hundred sat at the tables which were decorated by a profusion of flowers; the menu was excellent, the music delightful. The oratory was up to the Kentucky standard. Major Duncan bade us welcome; Senator Utley responded. Then followed Bronston, Breckinridge, Kincaid and Colson, whose speech was the hit of the evening. He spoke of the united Kentucky, no longer to be a place of political rict and bloodshed, but over whose capitol shall forever more rest the white winged angel of peace. Scarcely had the echoes died away when the band struck up "Old Kentucky Home," the refrain was taken up by three hundred voices, and the walls resounded with the soul-inspiring music.

The first sensation of the week was the vote of the House on the capitol removal amendment, offered by Mr. Parker and a substitute amendment offered by Mr. Barton, which referred to the people the location of its capital, naming Frankfort, Lexington and Louisville to select from. Many passionate appeals were made for Frankfort. The opposition responded with vigor. The galleries were crowded with the beauty and chivalry of Frankfort, looking down upon the jury that was to pass upon their case. They were buoyant, hopeful, sanguine. The roll-call came amidst a deathlike silence; fifty answered aye; the roses faded from many cheeks; then came the fateful sixty, which the constitution requires; then imagine the disappointment of these spectators! For the first time they had realized the gravity of the situation—their capital was about to be snatched away!

A bill allowing the circuit judge to appoint an official stenographer for each county has passed both houses.

The bill to "Protect the Healing Art," and also the Osteopath's bill were killed in the committee of Public Health.

Book bills will be reported in both houses next week.

Louisville will try to outdo Lexington next Friday night in the way of a banquet to the legislature.

Your obedient servant,

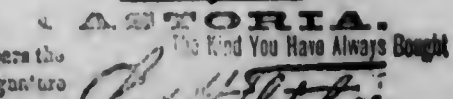

M. F. POGUE.

Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages, and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure-all, but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds, and all bronchial troubles. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at H. K. Woods & Co's drug store. Get Green's Special Almanac.

A LEGACY OF THE GRIP.

Is often a rundown system. Weakness, nervousness, lack of appetite, energy and ambition, with disordered liver and kidneys often follow an attack of this wretched disease. The greatest need then is Electric Bitters, the splendid tonic, blood purifier and regulator of Stomach, Liver and Kidneys. Thousands have proved that they wonderfully strengthen the nerves, build up the system, and restore to health and good spirits after an attack of grip. If suffering try them. Only 50c. Major Duncan bade us welcome; Senator Utley responded. Then followed Bronston, Breckinridge, Kincaid and Colson, whose speech was the hit of the evening. He spoke of the united Kentucky, no longer to be a place of political riot and bloodshed, but over whose capital shall forever more rest the white winged angel of peace. Scarcely had the echoes died away when the band struck up "Old Kentucky Home," the refrain was taken up by three hundred voices, and the walls resounded with the soul-inspiring music.

The first sensation of the week was the vote of the House on the capitol removal amendment, offered by Mr. Parker and a substitute amendment offered by Mr. Barton, which referred to the people the location of its capital, naming Frankfort, Lexington and Louisville to select from. Many passionate appeals were made for Frankfort. The opposition responded with vigor. The galleries were crowded with the beauty and chivalry of Frankfort, looking down upon the jury that was to pass up on their case. They were buoyant, hopeful, sanguine. The roll-call came amidst a deathlike silence; fifty answered aye; the roses faded from many cheeks; then came the fateful sixty, which the constitution requires; then imagine the disappointment of these spectators! For the first time they had realized the gravity of the situation—their capital was about to be snatched away!

A bill allowing the circuit judge to appoint an official stenographer for each county has passed both houses.

The bill to "Protect the Healing Art," and also the Osteopathy bill were killed in the committee of Public Health.

Book bills will be reported in both houses next week.

Louisville will try to outdo Lexington next Friday night in the way of a banquet to the legislature.

Your obedient servant,

M. F. POGUE.

Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages, and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure-all, but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds, and all bronchial troubles. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at H. K. Woods & Co's drug store. Get Green's Special Almanac.

A LEGACY OF THE GRIP.

Is often a rundown system. Weakness, nervousness, lack of appetite, energy and ambition, with disordered liver and kidneys often follow an attack of this wretched disease. The greatest need then is Electric Bitters, the splendid tonic, blood purifier and regulator of Stomach, Liver and Kidneys. Thousands have proved that they wonderfully strengthen the nerves, build up the system, and restore to health and good spirits after an attack of grip. If suffering try them. Only 50c. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed by H. K. Woods & Co.

A YOUTHFUL MURDERER.

Tragic Culmination of a Fued Between "Gangs" of Respectable Boys at St. Louis.

TEN-YEAR BOY BECOMES A MURDERER.

The Pistol-Carrying Habit Led to Fretwell Shock's Recenting an Indignity by One of a Rival "Gang" With a Shot, Which Killed Willie Ledger, Aged Sixteen.

St. Louis, Feb. 15.—Willie Ledger, 16 years old, was shot and instantly killed at nine o'clock Friday night by Fretwell Shock, a ten-year-old lad in knickerbockers, near the corner of Barmter and Goodfellow avenues, in the western part of the city. He admits that he killed Ledger, but says he aimed at one of Ledger's companions.

The killing was the culmination of a feud that has long existed between two factions composed of the boys of that section of the city. Ledger belonged to what is known as the "De Hodiomont gang" and Shock belonged to the "Cabanne gang."

The boys of both factions are the sons of well-to-do and respectable parents. Fretwell Shock, the father of the boy under arrest, is a director of George D. Barnard Co., and is now traveling for the firm in Texas.

Willie Ledger's father is dead. He made his home with his mother and his uncle, G. S. Servant. Mr. Servant is employed in the mechanical department of one of the daily papers.

Young Shock related the story of the shooting to the officers as calmly as though he were detailing his participation in a harmless snow-balling bout.

"Yes, I shot Ledger," he said; "but I didn't intend to shoot him. I aimed at that other fellow there," he said, indicating one of Ledger's companions, who was standing in the crowd some distance away. "He knocked me down and was going to do me up, and I didn't intend to get the worst of it. Those fellows were all bigger than me, and they've been beating us every time they run into us."

"That fellow had me down, and the gang of them would have beat me to death if I hadn't shot."

"I raised upon my knees and pulled the revolver and blazed away. I didn't mean to shoot Ledger, but the other fellow, who knocked me down."

"I'm sorry if Ledger's dead, but I couldn't help it."

SEVERE SOUTHERN STORMS.

A Mixture of Rain, Snow, Sleet and Thunder Storms to the South-Southern States.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 15.—A severe storm raged at Vicksburg, Friday evening, and Saturday was central near Jacksonville, Fla. The disturbance was a mixture of rain, snow, sleet and thunder storms, and was also felt at Montgomery and Charleston. Snow prevails generally and is the heaviest of the winter. Charlotte reports 13 inches, Nashville, 10; Knoxville, 8; Chattanooga 8 and Atlanta 3. Freezing weather extends south to a line running southwest from Wilmington, N. C., through to the central portion of the cotton belt, and much colder weather is predicted. In Atlanta, street car traffic has been seriously interfered with since six o'clock Friday night, several of the suburban lines abandoning their schedules. Sleighting was indulged in on many of the streets. Trains from the east were only slightly delayed up to noon. At Blacksburg, S. C., there is 18 inches of snow and no trains are moving in any direction.

BRITISH ARMY ESTIMATES.

They are Staggering to the British Ratepayers Even if They Are Not to Humanly.

London, Feb. 15.—The army estimates, issued Saturday, show a grand total for the year 1902-03 of £69,310,000, which is intended to provide for 420,000 men, of which 219,700 men are for the ordinary service and 200,300 for war service. The estimates, of which £40,000,000 is required for war, show a decrease under this head of £23,230,000 compared with 1901-02. In a memorandum the war secretary, Mr. Brodrick, explains that the estimates are sufficient to maintain a field force in South Africa of the present strength, for eight or nine months of the new financial year.

WHERE FIRST FLAG WAS MADE

The Historic Dwelling, on Arch Street, Philadelphia, Is to Be Preserved.

Philadelphia, Feb. 15.—The American Flag House and Betsy Ross Memorial association have purchased the historic dwelling on Arch street, in which was made the first American flag. The purchase price was $25,150 of which $19,150 was paid, a mortgage of $6,000 remaining.

The association was incorporated four years ago, and the money to effect the purchase was raised by individual subscriptions of ten cents.

Abandoning Gunster Indicted.

Toledo, O., Feb. 15.—Frank Brady, cashier of the Imperial Savings Co., which recently failed, has been indicted. It is alleged that he secured $50,000 of the bank's funds. Brady is now in South America.

THE VENERABLE SUSAN B.

The Mother of the Woman Suffrage Movement in America is Eighty-Two.

RECIPIENT OF MANY CONGRATULATIONS.

The Foreign Delegates to the First International Woman Suffrage Conference, at Washington, Joined in a Message of Greeting and Loving Reverence.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Interest in the National Woman Suffrage association meeting Saturday was heightened by the fact that it marked the eighty-second birthday anniversary of Susan B. Anthony. She was the recipient of many congratulations and was feelingly referred to in the invocation by Miss Laura De Merritte. Many floral tributes also were received by her.

The following message of greeting from the foreign delegates was received by her and read from the platform:

"We, the undersigned foreign delegates to the first international woman suffrage conference, gladly take the opportunity of your eighty-second birthday to express to you our love and reverence, our gratitude for your lifelong work for women, and our rejoicing that you have lived to see such great steps onward made by the world at large in the direction in which you led at first under such prejudice. Praying that you may enjoy years of health, cheered by ever-fresh advance, we remain your loving friends."

"SOFIA LEVORNA FRIEDLAND, Russia."

"CAROLINA HOLMAN HUIDOERO, Chili."

"GUDRUM DREWSEN, Norway."

"VIDA GOLDSTEIN, Austria."

"ERMA KWALD, Sweden."

"ANTONETTE STOLLE, Germany."

Mrs. Boyer, of Philadelphia, presented a plan of work for the coming year. That part of it relating to taxation without representation caused considerable discussion, which developed the fact that in paying the taxes a number of delegates insert in the tax certificates the words "Paid under protest." A suggestion by the president that all present who were taxpayers should rise brought to their feet over 200 women.

Other resolutions by the committee were to appoint a special committee to double the membership; to elect a special committee to select a national column to be published in the Woman's Journal; that systematic work be done to increase the circulation of suffrage; that presidential suffrage be urged and that there be a woman's suffrage stamp, similar to that used in France; that prizes be offered for the best essays on woman suffrage and "that we continue our plea for a sixteenth amendment respecting woman suffrage."

NOT IN THE CRIMINAL CODE.

A Philadelphia Judge Says He Doubts If There Is Such an Offense as "Attempted Suicide."

Philadelphia, Feb. 15.—Herbert Wright of this city has been arraigned before Judge Arnold on the charge of taking laudanum with suicidal intent. Wright pleaded "guilty" to attempting suicide but not with intent to kill himself. In dismissing the case Judge Arnold said he doubted if there is such an offense in this country as attempted suicide.

Veteran Found Starving.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 15.—Fred White and wife were discovered in an abandoned building, Friday, almost starved to death. They said they had nothing to eat for several weeks. White is an old soldier, aged 65, and it is feared he will die as the result of his going so long without food.

Shoemaker's "Pipe" Story.

Savannah, Mo., Feb. 15.—It now transpires that Maynard Shoemaker, alias Ed Smith, the Connel Bluffs (Ia.) man who claimed to have witnessed the killing of Frank Richardson, December 24, 1900, was doing time in the Nebraska penitentiary when the crime was committed.

Fire in Elevator Plant.

Danish Statesman Dead.

Copenhagen, Feb. 15.—Herr Hoerup, the minister of public works, who has been suffering from cancer, is dead.

PRINCE HENRY HAS SAILED.

He Left Bremerhaven for New York, on Board the Kron Prinz Wilhelm—A Flat Deal.

Bremerhaven, Feb. 15.—Prince Henry sailed for New York at 3:43 p. m. Previous to sailing Prince Henry, in conversation with a press correspondent, referred to the report that he had written a letter to Admiral Dewey, apologizing for the conduct of the German squadron in Manila bay during the war with Spain: "It is all untrue," said the prince. "I have never written to Admiral Dewey in my life."

The last seen of the prince from the shore here was when he stood on the bridge of the Kron Prinz Wilhelm in an admiral's uniform and lifted his cap in response to the cheers of the assembled crowds.

Commander Wm. H. Beecher, U. S. N., the United States naval attaché at Berlin, bid the prince good bye for the United States embassy.

Senator Tschirsky, Prussian minister to the Hanseatic cities, bid farewell to the prince for Emperor William, who also sent his brother a telegram previous to the departure of the steamer.

HOW IT ORIGINATED.

The Story of Prince Henry's Letter to Admiral Dewey.

Washington, Feb. 15.—From authentic sources comes a statement regarding the report that Prince Henry had written a letter of apology to Admiral Dewey. The information which follows was not received from Admiral Dewey himself, but from an intimate friend of his, and can be absolutely vouched for: The admiral has recently received a letter from a member of the United States embassy at Berlin, in which the writer gave a resume of a conversation he had had with Prince Henry of Prussia at the dinner given the latter by Ambassador White prior to the prince's departure for America.

In this conversation the prince, referring to his having hoped to return from the east via San Francisco, after his service in the China squadron, but having been obliged to hasten home via Suez on account of his mother's illness, in his usual candid manner and agreeing with a remark that the present was a much more opportune time for his visit, said:

"I know you Americans feel very sore about affairs in the east, and I do not blame you. I, myself, made a mistake which I see is now being exploited by the English press to create a prejudice. When at Hong Kong, at a dinner on the Deutschland (the prince's flagship in the east) Commander Dewey was present and was the senior officer; there were two Russians, some English and officers of other nationalities which I can not now recall, when I proposed the health of first the czar of Russia, then others, and last of all, that of the president of the United States. Dewey was offended, as I learned the next day, and I realized I had made a great mistake. I immediately went on board the Olympia and saw Dewey, who accepted my apology most graciously."

The prince added that he was well aware that mistakes had been made on their part, but that his relations with Admiral Dewey had always been of the most agreeable and pleasant character. He sent his highest regards to the admiral and expressed his sincere hope of seeing him during his visit to America.

AIR INDUCED COMBUSTION.

Curious Loss of Bonds and Valuable Papers that Went Through the Patterson Fire Tract.

New York, Feb. 15.—Former Attorney General John W. Griggs saw many thousand dollars' worth of his bonds and valuable papers destroyed in Patterson, N. J., just as he had seen them taken, still intact, from the ruins of the big fire.

These papers were in his private safe in his office, where his splendid law library was burned. The safe was taken from the ruins and the door pried open. Suddenly the papers burst into flames and were reduced to ashes. It is supposed gas had generated inside the safe. Among the papers were eight unregistered bonds, each of a face value of $1,000. Gardner Stewart, having offices near those of Mr. Griggs, lost $10,000 in the same manner. In an adjoining building were the offices of Katz Bros., brewers. In their safe were bonds valued at $150,000. When the safe was opened its contents were found to be in ashes.

Lawyers are said to have lost $150,000 in books by the destruction of their libraries in last Sunday's flames. Few of them carried insurance.

BENCH WARRANT FOR SNYDER

The Kansas City Millionaire Promoter Charged with Bribery by the St. Louis Grand Jury.

St. Louis, Feb. 15.—Robert M. Snyder, the millionaire promoter of Kansas City, is charged with bribery in a bench warrant issued by Judge Ryan Saturday. He has been indicted by the grand jury for complicity in the Central Traction hoodie scandal.

KIDNEY TROUBLES.

Mrs. Louise M. Gibson Says That This Fatal Disease is Easily Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I felt very discouraged two years ago, I had suffered so long with kidney troubles and other complications, and had taken so much medicine without relief that I began to think there was no hope for me. Life seemed so good to me, but what is life without health? I wanted to be well."

MRS. LOUISE M. GIBSON.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me and made me well, and that is why I gladly write you this, and gladly thank you; six bottles was all I took, together with your Pills. My headache and backache and kidney trouble went, never to return; the burning sensation I had left altogether; my general health was so improved I felt as young and light and happy as at twenty."—Mrs. LOUISE GIBSON, 4813 Langley Ave., Chicago, Ill.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

A YOUTHFUL MURDERER.

Tragic Culmination of a Fued Between "Gangs" of Respectable Boys at St. Louis.

TEN-YEAR BOY BECOMES A MURDERER.

The Pistol-Carrying Habit Led to Fretwell Shock Resulting in an Indignity by One of a Rival "Gang" With a Shot, Which Killed Willie Ledger, Aged Sixteen.

St. Louis, Feb. 15.—Willie Ledger, 16 years old, was shot and instantly killed at nine o'clock Friday night by Fretwell Shock, a ten-year-old lad in knickerbockers, near the corner of Bartmer and Goodfellow avenue, in the western part of the city. He admits that he killed Ledger, but says he aimed at one of Ledger's companions.

The killing was the culmination of a feud that has long existed between two factions composed of the boys of that section of the city. Ledger belonged to what is known as the "De Hodiaron gang" and Shock belonged to the "Cubmarine gang." The boys of both factions are the sons of well-to-do and respectable parents.

Floyd Shock, the father of the boy under arrest, is a director of George D. Barnard Co., and is now traveling for the firm in Texas.

Willie Ledger's father is dead. He made his home with his mother and his uncle, G. S. Servant. Mr. Servant is employed in the mechanical department of one of the daily papers.

Young Shock related the story of the shooting to the officers as calmly as though he were detailing his participation in a harmless snow-balling bout.

"Yes, I shot Ledger," he said; "but I didn't intend to shoot him. I aimed at that other fellow there," he said, indicating one of Ledger's companions, who was standing in the crowd some distance away. "He knocked me down and was going to do me up, and I didn't intend to get the worst of it. Those fellows were all bigger than me, and they've been beating us every time they run into us."

"That fellow had me down, and the gang of them would have bent me to death if I hadn't shot."

"I raised upon my knees and pulled the revolver and blazed away. I didn't mean to shoot Ledger, but the other fellow, who knocked me down."

"I'm sorry if Ledger's dead, but I couldn't help it."

SEVERE SOUTHERN STORMS.

A Mixture of Rain, Snow, Sleet and Thunder Storms in the South-Southern States.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 15.—A severe storm raged at Vicksburg, Friday evening, and Saturday was central near Jacksonville, Fla. The disturbance was a mixture of rain, snow, sleet and thunder storms, and was also felt at Montgomery and Charleston. Snow prevails generally and is the heaviest of the winter. Charlotte reports 15 inches, Nashville, 10; Knoxville, 8; Chattanooga 6 and Atlanta 3. Freezing weather extends south to a line running southwest from Wilmington, N. C., through to the central portion of the cotton belt, and much colder weather is predicted. In Atlanta, street car traffic has been seriously interfered with since six o'clock Friday night, several of the suburban lines abandoning their schedules. Sleighting was indulged in on many of the streets. Trains from the east were only slightly delayed up to noon. At Blacksburg, S. C., there is 18 inches of snow and no trains are moving in any direction.

BRITISH ARMY ESTIMATES.

They are Staggering to the British Rulepayers Even if They Are Not to Humanity.

London, Feb. 15.—The army estimates, issued Saturday, show a grand total for the year 1902-03 of £260,310,000, which is intended to provide for 420,000 men, of which 219,700 men are for the ordinary service and 200,500 for war service. The estimates, of which £40,000,000 is required for war, show a decrease under this head of £23,250,000 compared with 1901-02. In a memorandum the war secretary, Mr. Brodrick, explains that the estimates are sufficient to maintain a field force in South Africa of the present strength, for eight or nine months of the new financial year.

WHERE FIRST FLAG WAS MADE

The Historic Dwelling, on Arch Street, Philadelphia, Is to Be Preserved.

Philadelphia, Feb. 15.—The American Flag House and Betsy Ross Memorial association have purchased the historic dwelling on Arch street, in which was made the first American flag. The purchase price was $25,150 of which $19,150 was paid, a mortgage of $6,000 remaining.

The association was incorporated four years ago, and the money to effect the purchase was raised by individual subscriptions of ten cents.

Abandoning Cashier Indicted.

Toledo, O., Feb. 15.—Frank Brady, cashier of the Imperial Savings Co., which recently failed, has been indicted. It is alleged that he secured $50,000 of the bank's funds. Brady is now in South America.

THE VENERABLE SUSAN B.

The Mother of the Woman Suffrage Movement in America is Eighty-Two.

RECIPIENT OF MANY CONGRATULATIONS.

The Foreign Delegates to the First International Woman Suffrage Conference, at Washington, Joined in a Message of Greeting and Loving Reverence.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Interest in the National Woman Suffrage association meeting Saturday was heightened by the fact that it marked the eighty-second birthday anniversary of Susan B. Anthony. She was the recipient of many congratulations and was feelingly referred to in the invocation by Miss Laura De Merritt. Many floral tributes also were received by her.

The following message of greeting from the foreign delegates was received by her and read from the platform:

"We, the undersigned foreign delegates to the first international woman suffrage conference, gladly take the opportunity of your eighty-second birthday to express to you our love and reverence, our gratitude for your lifelong work for women, and our rejoicing that you have lived to see such great steps onward made by the world at large in the direction in which you led at first under such prejudice. Praying that you may enjoy years of health, cheered by ever-fresh advances, we remain your loving friends."

"FLORENCE FENWICK MILLER, England."

"SOPHIE LEVORNA FRIEDLAND, Russia."

"CAROLINA HOLMAN HUIDOBRO, Chile."

"GUDRUM DREWESEN, Norway."

"VIDA GOLDSTEIN, Australia."

"ERMA EWALD, Sweden."

"ANTONETTE STOLLE, Germany."

Mrs. Boyer, of Philadelphia, presented a plan of work for the coming year. That part of it relating to taxation without representation caused considerable discussion, which developed the fact that in paying the taxes a number of delegates insert in the tax certificates the words "Paid under protest." A suggestion by the president that all present who were taxpayers should rise brought to their feet over 200 women.

Other resolutions by the committee were to appoint a special committee to double the membership; thus clubs seek qualified women as local organizers, and when such are found invite them to assist; that a national column be published in the Woman's Journal; that systematic work be done to increase the circulation of suffrage; that presidential suffrage be urged and that there be a woman's suffrage stamp, similar to that used in France; that prizes be offered for the best essays on woman suffrage and "that we continue our plea for a sixteenth amendment respecting woman suffrage."

PRINCE HENRY HAS SAILED.

He left Bremerhaven for New York, on Board the Kron Prinz Wilhelm—A Flat Denial.

Bremerhaven, Feb. 15.—Prince Henry sailed for New York at 3:43 p. m. Previous to sailing Prince Henry, in conversation with a press correspondent, referred to the report that he had written a letter to Admiral Dewey, apologizing for the conduct of the German squadron in Manila bay during the war with Spain: "It is all untrue," said the prince. "I have never written to Admiral Dewey in my life."

The last seen of the prince from the shore here was when he stood on the bridge of the Kron Prinz Wilhelm in an admiral's uniform and lifted his cap in response to the cheers of the assembled crowds.

Commander Wm. H. Beecher, U. S. N., the United States naval attaché at Berlin, bid the prince good bye for the United States embassy.

Senator Tschirachky, Prussian minister to the Hanseatic cities, bid farewell to the prince for Emperor William, who also sent his brother a telegram previous to the departure of the steamer.

HOW IT ORIGINATED.

The Story of Prince Henry's Letter to Admiral Dewey.

Washington, Feb. 16.—From authentic sources comes a statement regarding the report that Prince Henry had written a letter of apology to Admiral Dewey. The information which follows was not received from Admiral Dewey himself, but from an intimate friend of his, and can be absolutely vouched for: The admiral has recently received a letter from a member of the United States embassy at Berlin, in which the writer gave a resume of a conversation he had had with Prince Henry of Prussia at the dinner given the latter by Ambassador White prior to the prince's departure for America.

In this conversation the prince, referring to his having hoped to return from the east via San Francisco, after his service in the China squadron, but having been obliged to hasten home via Suez on account of his mother's illness, in his usual candid manner and agreeing with a remark that the present was a much more opportune time for his visit, said:

"I know you Americans feel very sore about affairs in the east, and I do not blame you. I, myself, made a mistake which I see is now being exploited by the English press to create a prejudice. When at Hong Kong, at a dinner on the Deutschland (the prince's flagship in the east) Commander Dewey was present and was the senior officer; there were two Russians, some English and officers of other nationalities which I can not now recall, when I proposed the health of first the czar of Russia, then others, and last of all, that of the president of the United States. Dewey was offended, as I learned the next day, and I realized I had made a great mistake. I immediately went on board the Olympia and saw Dewey, who accepted my apology most graciously."

The prince added that he was well aware that mistakes had been made on their part, but that his relations with Admiral Dewey had always been of the most agreeable and pleasant character. He sent his highest regards to the admiral and expressed his sincere hope of seeing him during his visit to America.

AIR INDUCED COMBUSTION.

Curious Loss of Bonds and Valuable Papers that Went Through the Paterson Fire Inlet.

New York, Feb. 15.—Former Attorney General John W. Griggs saw many thousands of dollars' worth of his bonds and valuable papers destroyed in Paterson, N. J., just as he had seen them taken, still intact, from the ruins of the big fire.

These papers were in his private safe in his office, where his splendid law library was burned. The safe was taken from the ruins and the door pried open. Suddenly the papers burst into flames and were reduced to ashes. It is supposed gas had generated inside the safe. Among the papers were eight unregistered bonds each of a face value of $1,000. Gartner Stewart, having offices near those of Mr. Griggs, lost $10,000 in the same manner. In an adjoining building were the offices of Katz Bros., brewers. In their safe were bonds valued at $150,000. When the safe was opened its contents were found to be in ashes.

Lawyers are said to have lost $150,000 in books by the destruction of their libraries in last Sunday's flames. Few of them carried insurance.

KIDNEY TROUBLES.

Mrs. Louise M. Gibson Says That This Fatal Disease is Easily Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I felt very discouraged two years ago, I had suffered so long with kidney troubles and other complications, and had taken so much medicine without relief that I began to think there was no hope for me. Life seemed so good to me, but what a life without health? I wanted to be well."

MRS. LOUISE M. GIBSON.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me and made me well, and that is why I gladly write you this, and gladly thank you; six bottles was all I took, together with your Pills. My headache and backache and kidney trouble went, never to return; the burning sensation I had left altogether; my general health was so improved I felt as young and light and happy as at twenty.—MRS. LOUISE GIBSON, 4813 Langley Ave., Chicago, Ill.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine."

ANOTHER SEVERE STORM.

The Atlantic Coast Again in the Grip of a Severe North-east Storm.

IT IS ACCOMPANIED BY HEAVY SNOW.

Special Storm Warnings Sent Out By the Weather Bureau to Stations in New York and New England, and to Railroad Companies in Those States.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The severe storm which started on the Florida coast, Friday night, and raged along the coast in a northward direction, is now central off the coast of New Jersey, according to the weather bureau reports based on telegraphic advice sent at eight o'clock Monday morning. The storm, at that hour, was central at Atlantic City, where the wind was blowing with a velocity of 34 miles an hour. At New York city the official reports showed a velocity of 38 miles an hour, which is expected to reach 60 miles during the day. The storm area extends from southern New York to close to this section of the country. The storm is increasing in fury as it moves north through New York state and the New England states, and in its wake, during the next 24 or 36 hours, according to the bureau predictions, will be heavy snowfalls, already setting in the southern part of New York. Special storm warnings have been wired by the weather bureau to its stations in New York and New England and to railroad companies through those states. The storm is expected to pass off beyond the St. Lawrence valley, though it will be felt along the northern New England coast. At Boston the wind had attained a velocity of 44 miles an hour Monday morning. The storm passed over this city Sunday night, but the snowfall was light. There is no snow falling south of New Jersey.

THE STORM AT NEW YORK.

Heavy Snow Accompanied by a Strong Northeast Wind.

New York, Feb. 17.—A snowfall which began in the early hours of the morning developed into a storm, and at eight o'clock 6 1/2 inches had fallen. The snow was accompanied by a strong northeast wind, but there was only a slight drop in the temperature. The thermometer, at midnight, stood at 30 degrees, and up to eight o'clock it did not get below 26 degrees. As the storm began early the elevated and surface roads were able to keep their tracks clear by running sweepers over them and there was only slight delay in traffic in the city.

Highlands, Sandy Hook and quarantine observing stations reported a northerly gale blowing. Two steamers which had arrived during the night were anchored off the quarantine station, being the Pinner's Point, from Dundee, and Olinda, from Cuban ports. No other shipping was in sight. Coasting craft probably found shelter in good time or are keeping well off shore to escape damage from the storm. As the wind is off shore, wrecks will not be so liable to occur on the Long Island and New Jersey coasts as during the last gale. Many passenger liners are due, among them being the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiserin Marla Theresen and Anchor liner Karanania, both from Mediterranean ports; Atlantic Transport liner Manilla, from London; Anchor liner California and Italian liner Isola di Levanzo, both from Mediterranean ports, and Red D line steamer Philadelphia, from Venezuela and Porto Rico. Probably some of the steamers due have arrived outside Sandy Hook bar and have anchored till the weather clears.

The floating ice driven by the gale is packed in on the Staten Island shore, making navigation very difficult. The Staten Island ferries are making the trips without any attempt to observe schedules.

CHART INTERFERED WITH.

Navigation of the Delaware Bay Rendered Dangerous.

Lewes, Del., Feb. 17.—A heavy snow storm is raging here, seriously interfering with the raft on the Delaware bay. It is impossible to tell whether any vessels have passed in the mists since midnight, as vision is impossible for more than 20 yards off shore. Of the vessels anchored in the breakwater, not one has ventured to move since the severe storm began during the night. The steamship Noordland, Liverpool, for Philadelphia, which passed in the cape Sunday night, is supposed to be anchored in the bay above here, as she has not been reported from any of the reporting stations between the Delaware breakwater and Philadelphia.

Snow to the depth of eight inches has fallen, and the storm shows no signs of abating.

Almost a Blizzard.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17.—The most severe snow storm of the season, closely approaching the proportions of a blizzard is prevailing through Connecticut. The weather bureau reports it to be the edge of a disturbance which was central out at sea. At eight o'clock Monday morning the wind was from the north, blowing 35 miles an hour. Railroad trains were delayed by the drifting snow, and street cars were stalled in many instances.

Heaviest of the Season.

Cape May, N. J., Feb. 17.—The heaviest snow storm of the season is raging on the southern New Jersey coast. The wind is blowing from the north-west, and the snow is now ten inches deep. The life-savers are experiencing difficulty in patrolling the beaches owing to the drifting of the snow and it is impossible for them to see more than a few yards from the shore line.

Special Warning.

New York, Feb. 17.—The local weather bureau received the following:

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—Observer, New York: Heavy snow and severe gales will prevail during the next 24 to 36 hours in the interior of New York and New England and along New England coast.

[Signed] GARRIOTT.

Heaviest Snow of the Season.

Philadelphia, Feb. 17.—The heaviest snow storm of the season began here Sunday at midnight and still prevails with no indication of ceasing. A high wind prevails and the snow has drifted badly, interfering with all traffic.

Promises to Make Trouble.

Boston, Feb. 17.—A snow storm began here early Monday morning. The high wind is causing the snow to drift, which promises to make trouble for railway lines.

IN ELEVENTH CONGRESS.

Opening of the Eleventh Continental Congress of the Daughters of the Revolution.

THE SESSIONS WILL LAST ALL WEEK.

The President-General, Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks, Occupied the Chair and, After the Opening Exercises, Delivered Her Address of Welcome to the Delegates.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The eleventh continental congress of the national society of the Daughters of the American Revolution convened here with about eight hundred delegates and others representing chapters in states throughout the country present. The congress has before it many matters of importance to the welfare of the daughters. These include the erection of a continental memorial hall in this city; the adjustment of international disputes among some of the western chapters which have caused much trouble in the past; needed amendments in the constitution of the order, and projects for securing pensions for needy "daughters" whose fathers were actual fighters in the colonial struggle with England. The congress will last all week, with two sessions a day.

The congress was called to order at ten o'clock by the president-general, Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks, wife of United States Senator Fairbanks, of Indiana. Mrs. Wm. A. Smoot, of Virginia, the chaplain-general, offered the opening prayer, in which the entire congress, standing, joined. Led by Perry S. Foster, of this city, the congress sang "The Star-Spangled Banner." Mrs. Fairbanks then delivered her address of welcome. After expressing her gratification at the numbers of those present and what they represented, Mrs. Fairbanks urged upon every daughter the cultivation of the highest degree of reverence to law, devotion to the flag and preservation of the interests in general of the organization. She referred to the pending proposition to reduce the representation of the order, as the congress was becoming too unwieldy, and said that whatever measure was adopted along this line it would have in view full and complete representation of all the chapters in the country. She showed that there were now approximately 600 chapters, 34 chapters having been added during the past year, increasing the membership by 3,800. This makes the total membership over 40,000.

The morning session closed with a response by Mrs. John P. Swift, of California, to the address of Mrs. Fairbanks. The congress then took a recess until two o'clock in the afternoon. The afternoon programme included roll call, reports of credentials and programme committees, consideration of proposed amendments and announcement of the committee on recommendations of national officers.

Toledo, O., Feb. 17.—Mrs. Charles Purdy has returned to Toledo from the Klondike with a fortune. During her four years' residence in the Klondike, besides keeping a boarding house and hotel she bought and sold claims aggregating millions of dollars, and when she finally picked up stakes and came away she was worth over $1,000,000 in gold dust.

Mrs. Purdy and her husband started west nearly ten years ago. It is said that at Vancouver they disagreed about going farther, the husband returning to Tacoma, where he is now said to be a motorman for a street car company. Mrs. Purdy went on to Alaska and, from all accounts, prospered.

THE TRANSCAUCASUS QUAKE.

Late Reports Indicate the Loss of upwards of Two Thousand Human Lives.

Thaku, Transcaucasia, Feb. 17.—Deaths which are slowly arriving at Thaku from Shamaka, show that 2,000 persons, mostly women and children, perished as a result of the earthquake, last week, and that 4,000 houses were destroyed.

Thirty-four villages of the country surrounding Shamaka also suffered.

To add to the terrors of the neighborhood, a volcano near the village of Marany, eastward of Shamaka, has broken out into active eruption. A great cressant has appeared, whence immense flames and streams of lava are being thrown out. The course of the river Geonchanka has been altered in consequence of its bed being dammed with earth which had been disturbed by the earthquake.

Battalions of guards and detachments of soldiers with tents have been dispatched to Shamaka to aid in the work of rescue.

THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

Gov. Taft Presents His Views Further Before the Senate Committee on the Philippines.

HIS IDEAS OF A FORM OF GOVERNMENT.

Present Independence, He Says, Would Result in an Absolute Oligarchy, as the Islanders Have No Definite Idea of a Modern Civil Government.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Gov. Taft, in his testimony before the senate committee on the Philippines, stated more succinctly than he has heretofore done, his theory—which is, he said, also the theory of the Philippine commission—as to what congress should do in the way of supplying the Philippine people with a form of government. His plan is, first, to give the people a qualified suffrage with a gradual growth in popular government, which should be enlarged through education in the English language and in American institutions. Second, to institute within a reasonably short time a local legislature to consist of two bodies, one to be chosen by vote and the other to be appointive; third, to permit the islands to send two or three representatives to Washington.

In reply to questions, Gov. Taft said he agreed with Gen. Funston that the establishment of a popular assembly would give opportunity to demagogues to stir up the people, but that he did not include in this designation all persons who are opposed to American control. There are, he said, many men in the islands who conscientiously oppose the domination of the United States. To grant independence would, he thought, have the effect of consigning the 90 per cent. of uneducated people in the islands to the same servile position they held under Spanish rule. He thought there should be a declaration on the part of the United States of its intention to hold the islands indefinitely, with the understanding that when they are suitable for such a condition they may be given a quasi-independence. Such a pronouncement by this country would be welcomed by many and would do much good. Many of the common people do not, he said, pendence and dependence, and many of the better informed have not followed the agitation for independence to its last analysis. Some of the agitators seem, he said, to count upon a protectorate by the United States. If the government of the islands should now be turned over to the islanders themselves there would be nothing less than an absolute oligarchy, they having no idea of civil government.

THE WORK OF SAFE BURGLARS.

Two Safes Blown at Northampton, Mass., by Five Men, Who Made Their Escape.

Northampton, Mass., Feb. 17.—Five men blew open two safes in the street railway company's office here early Monday morning, after overpowering the watchman. They secured about $750 in cash and $300 in checks. In their haste they overlooked $500 in one of the safes. They escaped with a team, and when the watchman succeeded in getting a gag out of his mouth so as to give the alarm, all trace of them had been lost.

ANOTHER SEVERE STORM.

The Atlantic Coast Again In the Grip of a Severe North-east Storm.

IT IS ACCOMPANIED BY HEAVY SNOW.

Special Storm Warnings Sent Out by the Weather Bureau to Stations in New York and New England, and to Railroad Companies in Those States.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The severe storm which started on the Florida coast, Friday night, and raged along the coast in a northward direction, is now central off the coast of New Jersey, according to the weather bureau reports based on telegraphic advice sent at eight o'clock Monday morning. The storm, at that hour, was central at Atlantic City, where the wind was blowing with a velocity of 40 miles an hour. At New York city the official reports showed a velocity of 38 miles an hour, which is expected to reach 60 miles during the day. The storm area extends from southern New York to close to this section of the country. The storm is increasing in fury as it moves north through New York state and the New England states, and in its wake, during the next 24 or 36 hours, according to the bureau predictions, will be heavy snowfalls, already falling in the northern part of New York. Special storm warnings have been issued by the weather bureau to its stations in New York and New England and to railroad companies through those states. The storm is expected to pass off beyond the St. Lawrence valley, though it will be felt along the northern New England coast. At Boston the wind had reached a velocity of 44 miles an hour Monday morning. The storm passed over this city Sunday night and the snowfall was light. There is no snow falling south of New Jersey.

THE STORM AT NEW YORK.

Heavy Snow Accompanied by a Strong Northeast Wind.

New York, Feb. 17.—A snowfall which began in the early hours of the morning developed into a storm, and at eight o'clock 6 1/2 inches had fallen. The snow was accompanied by a strong northeast wind, but there was only a slight drop in the temperature. The thermometer, at midnight, stood at 30 degrees, and up to eight o'clock it did not get below 26 degrees. As the storm began early the elevated and surface roads were able to keep their trucks clear by running sweepers over them and there was only slight delay in traffic in the city.

Highlands, Sandy Hook and quarantines observing stations reported a northerly gale blowing. Two steamers which had arrived during the night were anchored off the quarantine station, being the Pinner's Point, from Dundee, and Olinda, from Cuban ports. No other shipping was in sight. Constant craft probably found shelter in good time or are keeping well off shore to escape damage from the storm. As the wind is off shore, wrecks will not be so liable to occur on the Long Island and New Jersey coasts as during the last gale. Many passenger liners are due, among them being the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiserin Maria Theresia and Anchor liner Karamania, both from Mediterranean ports; Atlantic Transport liner Maritima, from London; Anchor liner Californian and Italian liner Isola d'Elva, both from Mediterranean ports; and Red D line steamer Philadelphia, from Venezuela and Porto Rico. Probably some of the steamers due have arrived outside Sandy Hook bar and have anchored till the weather clears.

The floating ice driven by the gale is packed in on the Staten Island shore, making navigation very difficult. The Staten Island ferries are making the trips without any attempt to observe schedules.

CRRAFT INTERFERED WITH.

Navigation of the Delaware Bay Rendered Dangerous.

Lewes, Del., Feb. 17.—A heavy snow storm is raging here, seriously interfering with the craft on the Delaware bay. It is impossible to tell whether any vessels have passed in the cape since midnight, as vision is impossible for more than 50 yards off shore. Of the vessels anchored in the breakwater, not one has ventured to move since the severe storm began during the night. The steamer Sordland, Liverpool, for Philadelphia, which passed in the cape Sunday night, is supposed to be anchored in the bay above here, as she has not been reported from any of the reporting stations between the Delaware breakwater and Philadelphia.

Snow to the depth of eight inches has fallen, and the storm shows no signs of abating.

Almost a Blizzard.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17.—The most severe snow storm of the season, closely approaching the proportions of a blizzard is prevailing through Connecticut. The weather bureau reports it to be the edge of a disturbance which was central out at sea. At eight o'clock Monday morning the wind was from the north, blowing 35 miles an hour. Railroad trains were delayed by the drifting snow, and street cars were stalled at crossings.

Hottest of the Season.

Cape May, N. J., Feb. 17.—The heaviest snow storm of the season is raging on the southern New Jersey coast. The wind is blowing from the north-west, and the snow is now ten inches deep. The life savers are experiencing difficulty in patrolling the beaches owing to the drifting of the snow and it is impossible for them to see more than a few yards from the shore line.

Special Warning.

New York, Feb. 17.—The local weather bureau received the following:

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—Observer, New York: Heavy snow and severe gales will prevail during the next 24 to 36 hours in the interior of New York and New England and along New England coast.

[Signed] GARRIOTT.

Hottest Snow of the Season.

Philadelphia, Feb. 17.—The heaviest snow storm of the season began here Sunday at midnight and still prevails with no indication of ceasing. A high wind prevails and the snow has drifted badly, interfering with all traffic.

Promises to Make Trouble.

Boston, Feb. 17.—A snow storm began here early Monday morning. The high wind is causing the snow to drift, which promises to make trouble for railway lines.

IN ELEVENTH CONGRESS.

Opening of the Eleventh Continental Congress of the Daughters of the Revolution.

THE SESSIONS WILL LAST ALL WEEK.

The President-General, Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks, Occupied the Chair and, After the Opening Exercises, Delivered Her Address of Welcome to the Delegates.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The eleventh continental congress of the national society of the Daughters of the American Revolution convened here with about eight hundred delegates and others representing chapters in states throughout the country present. The congress has before it many matters of importance to the welfare of the daughters. These include the erection of a continental memorial hall in this city; the adjustment of international disputes among some of the western chapters which have caused much trouble in the past; needed amendments in the constitution of the order, and projects for securing pensions for needy "daughters" whose fathers were actual fighters in the colonial struggle with England. The congress will last all week, with two sessions a day.

The congress was called to order at ten o'clock by the president-general, Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks, wife of United States Senator Fairbanks, of Indiana. Mrs. Wm. A. Smart, of Virginia, the chaplain-general, offered the opening prayer, in which the entire congress, standing, joined. Led by Percy S. Foster, of this city, the congress sang "The Star-Spangled Banner." Mrs. Fairbanks then delivered her address of welcome. After expressing her gratification at the numbers of those present and what they represented, Mrs. Fairbanks urged upon every daughter the cultivation in the highest degree of reverence to law, devotion to the flag and preservation of the interests in general of the organization. She referred to the pending proposition to reduce the representation of the order, and said that whatever measure was adopted along this line it would have in view full and complete representation of all the chapters in the country. She showed that there were now approximately 600 chapters, 34 chapters having been added during the past year, increasing the membership by 8,000. This makes the total membership over 40,000.

The morning session closed with a response by Mrs. John F. Swift, of California, to the address of Mrs. Fairbanks. The congress then took a recess until two o'clock in the afternoon. The afternoon programme included roll call, reports of credentials and programme committees, consideration of proposed amendments and announcement of the committee on recommendations of national officers.

THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

Gov. Taft Presents His Views Further Before the Senate Committee on the Philippines.

HIS IDEAS OF A FORM OF GOVERNMENT.

Present Independence, He Says, Would Result in An Absolute Oligarchy, as the Islanders Have No Definite Idea of a Modern Civil Government.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Gov. Taft, in his testimony before the senate committee on the Philippines, stated more succinctly than he has heretofore done, his theory—which is, he said, also the theory of the Philippine commission—as to what congress should do in the way of supplying the Philippine people with a form of government. His plan is, first, to give the people a qualified suffrage with a gradual growth in popular government, which should be enlarged through education in the English language and in American institutions. Second, to institute within a reasonably short time a local legislature to consist of two bodies, one to be chosen by vote and the other to be appointive; third, to permit the islands to send two or three representatives to Washington.

In reply to questions, Gov. Taft said he agreed with Gen. Funston that the establishment of a popular assembly would give opportunity to demagogues to stir up the people, but that he did not include in this designation all persons who are opposed to American control. There are, he said, many men in the islands who conscientiously oppose the domination of the United States. To grant independence would, he thought, have the effect of consigning the 90 per cent. of uneducated people in the islands to the same servile position they held under Spanish rule. He thought there should be a declaration on the part of the United States of its intention to hold the islands indefinitely, with the understanding that when they are suitable for such a condition they may be given a quasi-independence. Such a pronouncement by this country would be welcomed by many and would do much good. Many of the common people do not, he said, pendence and dependence, and many of the better informed have not followed the agitation for independence to its last analysis. Some of the agitators seem, he said, to count upon a protectorate by the United States. If the government of the islands should now be turned over to the islanders themselves there would be nothing less than an absolute oligarchy, they having no idea of civil government.

THE WORK OF SAFE BURGLARS.

Two Safes Blown at Northampton, Mass., by Five Men, Who Made Their Escape.

Northampton, Mass., Feb. 17.—Five men blew open two safes in the street railway company's office here early Monday morning, after overpowering the watchman. They secured about $750 in cash and $300 in checks. In their haste they overlooked $500 in one of the safes. They escaped with a team, and when the watchman succeeded in getting a gag out of his mouth so as to give the alarm, all trace of them had been lost.

GOUDIE PLEADED GUILTY.

The Alleged Parties to the Robberies of the Bank of Liverpool Arraigned and Plead.

London, Feb. 17.—When the charges against the men accused of participation in the robberies of the Bank of Liverpool were brought up for a hearing at the Old Bailey, Thos. P. Goudie, the bookkeeper, pleaded guilty, and "Dick" Burge, the pugilist, F. D. Kelly, a bookmaker, and Stiles, another bookmaker, who are charged with complicity in the frauds, pleaded not guilty.

IS NOT TAKEN SERIOUSLY.

Chicago Packers Don't Take Much Stock in That $9,000,000 Corporation Story From South Dakota.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—The reported formation of a $9,000,000 corporation to build abattoirs to handle meat products and by-products is not seriously considered by local packers. The men back of the company, it is said, are not known in Chicago, and the stock yards men here are represented as at a loss to understand why a corporation of such proportions should be formed in South Dakota.

Cracker Factory Burned.

Manchester, Conn., Feb. 17.—During the severe gale and snowstorm, Monday morning, the cracker factory of Frank Goetz in North Manchester was destroyed by fire. A house connected with the factory, and a large coal shed were also burned, the total loss being $75,000.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

FOR CONGRESS.

We are authorized to announce
OLLIE M. JAMES

a candidate to represent the First District of Kentucky in Congress, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Prince Henry, when he comes, gives Louisville just ten minutes of his valuable time. If our metropolis wants to make the occasion interesting it should secure the services of Charlie Wheeler for the welcome address.

If all the official information we are getting about the Filipino is correct, that gentleman can best serve his country by getting off the earth, and if he is wise in his day and generation the history of poor Lo will accelerate his going hence.

The new revenue bill before the legislature is described by one of its progenitors as "the best revenue law" the state ever had. If it is really that, he ought to have given a more pleasing description by saying, "it provides for the collection of less tax than any measure ever enacted, and, furthermore, in this one particular it is like the laws of the Medes and Persians, it can never be changed."

The PRESS is in receipt of letters from Clay, Webster county, stating that the people of that section are expressing their appreciation of the Alexander telephone line by donating posts for repairing the line and paying for an extra month's telephone service. Through its extensive exchange system and low rates this line has given the people of Crittenden, Livingston and Webster counties unsurpassed telephone service; indeed we know of no line or system that equals it in liberality to the public, and it is not surprising that a spirit of reciprocity is shown in the midst of the heavy losses sustained by this line as a result of the recent storm. The line and its enterprising, accommodating owner, Mr. Alexander, has earned and is entitled to the highest consideration of his scores of patrons from Smithland to Madisonville.

A CONVINCING ANSWER.

"I hobbled into Mr. Blackmon's drug store one evening," says Wesley Nelson, of Hamilton, Ga. "and he asked me to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism, with which I had suffered for a long time. I told him I had no faith in any medicine, as they all failed; he said: 'Well, if Chamberlain's Pain Balm does no help you need not pay for it.' I took a bottle of it home and used it according to directions, and in one week I was perfectly cured, and have not since been troubled with rheumatism. Sold by R. F. Haynes.

I have a number of choice building lots in Marion for sale.

MINING NOTES.

Tom King is sinking a shaft on his farm in the Repton neighborhood. He has a flattering prospect.

Messrs. R. H. Woods, D. Woods and ex-county Judge Rochester have a lease on Jourdan Hudson's farm and will begin prospecting shortly. This lease is in the neighborhood of the Blue & Nunn mine and there are evidences of zinc carbonate in paying quantities.

Articles of incorporation of The Marion Zinc Company, of Marion, Ky., capital $5000, were filed with the Secretary of State last week. Incorporators C. S. Knight, Fort Wayne, Ind.; D. C. Griffith, Indianapolis, Ind.; Dr. J. J. Clark and D. C. Roberts of Marion, Ky.

Mr. L. W. Cruce will sell stock to equip his mine with machinery sufficient to operate it. "Mine is no prospect," says Mr. Cruce, "it is a developed mine and will prove to be one of the richest in the country."

Dr. Curran Pope, of Louisville, was here last week. He expects to return as soon as spring opens, and will bring a number of investors with him. Dr. Pope has been interested in the field for several months.

A representative of Baldauff Bros., of Henderson, was here several days last week, and it is reported, secured some good leases.

Mr. J. R. Finley has purchased for his company the machinery necessary for re-opening the Bigham shaft, and he hopes to have it in operation before the early flowers bloom.

Compared with the vast coal mining interests of the State, already developed and firmly established in all of its ramifications, the zinc, lead and spar mining industry of Crittenden and Livingston counties is not a colossus. The one is yet in its infancy, and investors are feeling their way along cautiously, now scrutinizing the character and quality of the output, now studying the market as it develops, never feeling absolutely secure in the stability of either of these all important factors. This mining district, or rather this geological and mineralogical formation, is unlike any other in the country, and the period of development, and to some extent hesitancy will remain until a more thorough knowledge is had of these doubtful quantities, and until a stable market is established for the product, and it may be added, until the inventive genius of man, perfects machinery for rendering merchantable more of the ore produced. With these conditions so potent, it seems to us that our legislators should move discreetly, with a thorough knowledge of conditions, in the enactment of laws to effect the district. Conditions are becoming better, development is moving along at a normal pace, new capital is investigating, the best of feeling exists between the employee and employer, and there seems to be no conditions to demand new laws, or the application of old ones to a new district. When matters take a permanent shape, and we get the lessons of experience, occasions may rise to show the necessity of legislative enactment.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

I had nervous trouble for years which at times completely prostrated me and made life not worth living. I tried many physicians and no end of nerve and other remedies, without relief. Mr. M. J. Crews, merchant, Malloy, Iowa, persuaded me to try Morley's Sarsaparilla and Iron. The very first bottle went right to the spot, for I felt a complete change, and now after using six bottles in all I am perfectly well. Mrs. Lettie Fisher. Sold by H. K. Woods & Co.

TRAGIC ENDING

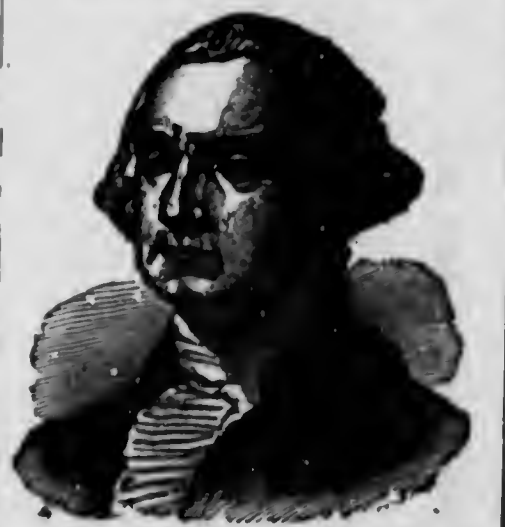

Of a Joke...Willard Watson Shoots Himself.

Saturday evening Willard Watson accidentally shot himself and there is very little hope of his recovery. Watson is a son of Mr. John Watson, of the Mattoon neighborhood. He and his brother Lynn bought a farm in Caldwell county. Watson and his brother returned to their home Saturday evening from Fredonia, and decided that they would frighten their wives. On reaching home Willard picked up a revolver that he thought was empty, and telling his wife that he was tired of life, and at the third pull of the trigger the weapon was discharged, the ball passing through the right lung, barely missing the heart. Wednesday morning he was supposed to be in a dying condition.

Several months ago Watson married a daughter of Mr. Tom Henry of Repton.

YOUTHFUL ORATORS

To Compete for Gold and Silver Medals Saturday Evening.

The fifth annual oratorical contest of the Marion graded school will be held at the opera house Saturday evening, Feb. 22d.

The program for the evening is as follows:

PROGRAM.

Music—Chorus.
Invocation.
Music—Cornet and piano.
Oration—This New Commercial Day; Lonna Towery.
Oration—Kentucky's Part in the Establishment of our Union; Sadie Rankin.
Music—Quartet.
Oration—John Paul Jones; Leslie Woods.
Oration—The American Doctrine; W. L. Terry.
Music—Solo.
Oration—Dixie; Lillie Doss.

Birthday Dinner.

On Jan. 20 Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bettis were surprised with a birthday dinner given them by their daughter, Mrs. J. W. Ainsworth. It was quite an enjoyable affair, all the children being present except Mr. J. E. Bettis, who lives in Montgomery, Ala.

The couple is probably one of the oldest living in Crittenden county. They were born in Jefferson county, Tenn., in the years 1823-24 and moved to Kentucky in 1850, and have been residents of Crittenden county ever since. "Uncle Jake", as he is familiarly called, belongs to the Masonic order and requests to be buried by that order. They joined the united Baptist church in 1846, and have been devoted members of that church ever since.

Four children blessed their union and they all live in Crittenden except one. They have fourteen grandchildren and nineteen great-grandchildren. They spent several winters in the south, which greatly improved their health, but they returned to old Kentucky to spend the remainder of their years near their children. They both seem very "spry," and bid fair to spend several more winters with us yet.

May they be blessed with loving hands to cherish them in their old age and may their last days be their happiest ones is the sincere wish of A Friend.

Articles of incorporation of The Marion Zinc Company, of Marion, Ky., capital $5000, were filed with the Secretary of State last week. Incorporators C. S. Knight, Fort Wayne, Ind.; D. C. Griffith, Indianapolis, Ind.; Dr. J. J. Clark and D. C. Roberts of Marion, Ky.

Mr. L. W. Cruce will sell stock to equip his mine with machinery sufficient to operate it. "Mine is no prospect," says Mr. Cruce, "it is a developed mine and will prove to be one of the richest in the country."

Dr. Curran Pope, of Louisville, was here last week. He expects to return as soon as spring opens, and will bring a number of investors with him. Dr. Pope has been interested in the field for several months.

A representative of Baldauff Bros., of Henderson, was here several days last week, and it is reported, secured some good leases.

Mr. J. R. Finley has purchased for his company the machinery necessary for re-opening the Bigham shaft, and he hopes to have it in operation before the early flowers bloom.

Compared with the vast coal mining interests of the State, already developed and firmly established in all of its ramifications, the zinc, lead and spar mining industry of Crittenden and Livingston counties is not a colossus. The one is yet in its infancy, and investors are feeling their way along cautiously, now scrutinizing the character and quality of the output, now studying the market as it develops, never feeling absolutely secure in the stability of either of these all important factors. This mining district, or rather this geological and mineralogical formation, is unlike any other in the country, and the period of development, and, to some extent, hesitancy will remain until a more thorough knowledge is had of these doubtful quantities, and until a stable market is established for the product, and it may be added, until the inventive genius of man, perfects machinery for rendering merchantable more of the ore produced. With these conditions so potent, it seems to us that our legislators should move discreetly, with a thorough knowledge of conditions, in the enactment of laws to effect the district. Conditions are becoming better, development is moving along at a normal pace, new capital is investigating, the best of feeling exists between the employee and employer, and there seems to be no conditions to demand new laws, or the application of old ones to a new district. When matters take a permanent shape, and we get the lessons of experience, occasions may arise to show the necessity of legislative enactment.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

I had nervous trouble for years which at times completely prostrated me and made life not worth living. I tried many physicians and no end of nerve and other remedies, without relief. Mr. M. J. Crews, merchant, Malloy, Iowa, persuaded me to try Morley's Sarsaparilla and Iron. The very first bottle went right to the spot, for I felt a complete change, and now after using six bottles in all I am perfectly well. Mrs. Lettie Fisher. Sold by H. K. Woods & Co.

TRAGIC ENDING

Of a Joke—Willard Watson Shoots Himself.

Saturday evening Willard Watson accidentally shot himself and there is very little hope of his recovery. Watson is a son of Mr. John Watson, of the Mattoon neighborhood. He and his brother Lynn bought a farm in Caldwell county. Watson and his brother returned to their home Saturday evening from Fredonia, and decided that they would frighten their wives. On reaching home Willard picked up a revolver that he thought was empty, and telling his wife that he was tired of life, and at the third pull of the trigger the weapon was discharged, the ball passing through the right lung, barely missing the heart. Wednesday morning he was supposed to be in a dying condition.

Several months ago Watson married a daughter of Mr. Tom Henry of Repton.

YOUTHFUL ORATORS

To Compete for Gold and Silver Medals Saturday Evening.

The fifth annual oratorical contest of the Marion graded school will be held at the opera house Saturday evening, Feb. 22d.

The program for the evening is as follows:

PROGRAM.

Music—Chorus.
Invocation.
Music—Cornet and piano.
Oration—This New Commercial Day; Lonna Towery.
Oration—Kentucky's Part in the Establishment of our Union; Sadie Rankin.
Music—Quartet.
Oration—John Paul Jones; Lee W. Woods.
Oration—The American Doctrine; W. L. Terry.
Music—Solo.
Oration—Dixie; Lillie Doss.
Music—Chorus.
Decision of judges.
Benediction.

The contest is one of the most interesting features of the school. Every year for the past few years five young ladies and gentlemen have appeared before the footlights at the opera house and competed for the gold and silver medals, and the house is always crowded with enthusiastic friends of the respective contestants.

It is customary to charge an admission fee in order to defray the necessary expenses. The price of admission will be 10, 20 and 30 cents. Reserved seats will be on sale at the Press office Friday afternoon.

Birthday Dinner.

On Jan. 20 Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bettis were surprised with a birthday dinner given them by their daughter, Mrs. J. W. Ainsworth.

It was quite an enjoyable affair, all the children being present except Mr. J. E. Bettis, who lives in Montgomery, Ala.

The couple is probably one of the oldest living in Crittenden county. They were born in Jefferson county, Tenn., in the years 1823-24 and moved to Kentucky in 1850, and have been residents of Crittenden county ever since. "Uncle Jake", as he is familiarly called, belongs to the Masonic order and requests to be buried by that order. They joined the united Baptist church in 1846, and have been devoted members of that church ever since.

Four children blessed their union and they all live in Crittenden except one. They have fourteen grandchildren and nineteen great-grandchildren. They spent several winters in the south, which greatly improved their health, but they returned to old Kentucky to spend the remainder of their years near their children. They both seem very "spry," and bid fair to spend several more winters with us yet.

May they be blessed with loving hands to cherish them in their old age and may their last days be their happiest ones is the sincere wish of
A Friend.

My Hair

"I had a very severe sickness that took off all my hair. I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor and it brought all my hair back again."

W. D. Quinn, Marselles, Ill.

One thing is certain, Ayer's Hair Vigor makes the hair grow. This is because it is a hair food. It feeds the hair and the hair grows, that's all there is to it. It stops falling of the hair, too, and always restores color to gray hair.

Rev. Montgomery conducted services at the Presbyterian church Sunday. Saturday's Paducah News-Democrat says:

"Rev. Charles R. Montgomery, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of this city, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church of Marion, Ky. Rev. Mr. Montgomery went to Marion today and will preach his first sermon there Sunday morning. He will return Monday and remove his family to their new home sometime next week."

Cord of Thanks.

We desire to thank the people of Marion for their untiring attention and loving kindness shown our husband and father, A. C. Gilbert, during his late fatal illness. We can not command words to express our feeling toward them. May God's richest blessings ever rest upon them is our prayer.

DEATH'S HARVEST.

The Old Landmarks Are Passing Away—Six Deaths.

Mr. A. C. Gilbert died at his home in Marion Saturday, after an illness of several days of pneumonia. The funeral took place from the residence Sunday. After brief services by Rev. T. V. Joiner the Masonic lodge took charge of the remains and the burial was according to the beautiful ceremonies of the order. Interment at the old cemetery.

Mr. Gilbert was the oldest and one of the best known business men in the county. He was in his 79th year and for many years he had been in the saddlery business here. He had served the county as jailer. He was an honest, industrious man—one who unassumingly but faithfully fulfilled the duties of citizenship, and he leaves an honorable name and a memory that will be cherished by many friends.

Two children survive him, Mr. A. M. Gilbert of this place and Mrs. E. R. Williams of the county.

Mr. I. W. Kinsey died at his home in Tolu Thursday. He sustained a paralytic stroke several weeks ago, and never recovered from the blow, gradually sinking until the end came.

"Uncle Ike," as he was familiarly known, was born in this county in 1830. Except six years spent in Iowa he has always been a resident of the county. He was a good man and a good citizen, highly respected by all.

Mrs. Foley, widow of the late Geo. W. Foley, died at her home near Sheridan Tuesday after some days illness of pneumonia. The interment took place at Deer creek church Wednesday.

Mrs. Davis, wife of Mr. Gabriel Davis, died at her home in Salem Tuesday. The deceased was formerly Miss Kitty LaRue, a sister of Dr. LaRue of Smithland.

Rev. Samuel Vanhooser died at his home in Caldwell county near the Crittenden line. He was a minister of the Baptist church, and as such was popular with his people. He was a splendid citizen and a man respected by all who knew him.

Ninety-Two Years of Age.

Mrs. Storall died at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. York, in the western portion of the county, Tuesday. She was the oldest person in the county, being ninety-two years of age.

THE REVIVAL

At the Methodist Church Closed Monday Night.

The revival services that have been in progress at the Methodist church for the past two weeks, closed Monday night. As a result of the meeting there were fourteen conversions and several additions to the church. DEATH'S HARVEST.

The Old Landmarks Are Passing Away—Six Deaths.

Mr. A. C. Gilbert died at his home in Marion Saturday, after an illness of several days of pneumonia. The funeral took place from the residence Sunday. After brief services by Rev. T. V. Joiner the Masonic lodge took charge of the remains and the burial was according to the beautiful ceremonies of the order. Interment at the old cemetery.

Mr. Gilbert was the oldest and one of the best known business men in the county. He was in his 79th year and for many years he had been in the saddlery business here. He had served the county as jailer. He was an honest, industrious man—one who unassumingly but faithfully fulfilled the duties of citizenship, and he leaves an honorable name and a memory that will be cherished by many friends.

Two children survive him, Mr. A. M. Gilbert of this place and Mrs. E. R. Williams of the county.

Mr. I. W. Kimsey died at his home in Tolu Thursday. He sustained a paralytic stroke several weeks ago, and never recovered from the blow, gradually sinking until the end came.

"Uncle Ike," as he was familiarly known, was born in this county in 1830. Except six years spent in Iowa he has always been a resident of the county. He was a good man and a good citizen, highly respected by all.

Mrs. Foley, widow of the late Geo. W. Foley, died at her home near Sheridan Tuesday after some days illness of pneumonia. The interment took place at Deer creek church Wednesday.

Mrs. Davis, wife of Mr. Gabriel Davis, died at her home in Salem Tuesday. The deceased was formerly Miss Kitty LaRue, a sister of Dr. LaRue of Smithland.

Rev. Samuel Vanhooser died at his home in Caldwell county near the Crittenden line. He was a minister of the Baptist church, and as such was popular with his people. He was a splendid citizen and a man respected by all who knew him.

Ninety-Two Years of Age.

Mrs. Stovall died at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. York, in the western portion of the county, Tuesday. She was the oldest person in the county, being ninety-two years of age.

THE REVIVAL

At the Methodist Church Closed Monday Night.

The revival services that have been in progress at the Methodist church for the past two weeks, closed Monday night. As a result of the meeting there were fourteen conversions and several additions to the church. The services were well attended and the meeting was one of the most successful held in this city for several years. Rev. Lowery left Tuesday morning for Greenville.

Washington As An Athlete

COULD PITCH AN IRON BAR FARTHER THAN ANY OTHER MAN OF HIS TIME.

WASHINGTON was the champion of athletic games, and the power of his hand and arm was displayed in several memorable instances. He flung a stone across the Rappahannock, and in 1772, when he was 40 years of age, he could pitch an iron bar further than any man of his time. The story of his throwing a silver dollar across the Potomac lacks actual confirmation, and it must have surely been a feat of later years, as the silver dollar was less common then than now. It might have been a Spanish or Mexican dollar. The explanation that a dollar went further in those days than these is almost as old as the story.

Among the amusing stories of our first president told in minor history and in legendary lore are those which endow him with marvellous powers of endurance, a giant's stature and hands of such size that none other ever equaled him, they being of gigantic dimensions. A pretty story of his first wooing, at the early age of 17, writes M. L. Rayne, in the Chicago Times-Herald, introduces his hand with dramatic effect.

The time was the year of grace 1778, and the place was Mount Vernon, a beautiful romantic site in Fairfax county, Virginia, on the right bank of the Potomac, and within 15 miles of Washington, D. C., as it now stands.

There it was that a small boy in roundabout and knickerbockers saw a gay cavalier exercising a pair of saddle horses, while he talked in the sylvan solitude, believing himself alone.

"Will you ride with me, Miss Mary? Miss Mary, will you ride with me? May I have the honor of your company for a ride this afternoon? Sweet Mistress Mary, will you accept me for your gallant to ride at your stirrup. Peace, Queen Bees, or I'll larrup you with the whip! Whoa, jade! Sweet Mistress Mary, I am George Washington, at your command."

The small boy of that day was no improvement on his prototype of this. He answered in a flutlike voice with a mocking cadence:

"Marry now, sweet Mistress Mary, may I ride with you, or will you ride with me, or go alone at your own sweet will? Hai! Hai! Hai!"

The youngster laughed wickedly at the discomfiture of the youthful equestrian, who could not leave his horses to administer punishment, but as he was the small brother of "Sweet Mary Gerrish" he accepted the bribe of an English deerhound to inform his sister that George Washington had come with a fine horse and sidesaddle to ask her to ride.

At that period George was 17 years old, and on this memorable ride the father of our country proposed after this fashion:

"Look at the hand, Miss Mary. It is yours!"

Miss Mary, who was several years older than her lovesick swain, gave a merry laugh.

"Why, what in the world would I do with that hand, Master Washington? I have two hands of my own!"

When he made his meaning clearer she informed him gently that she was already engaged to that Maj. Trenchum who afterward was arrested as a traitor, pardoned by Gen. Washington and sent back to England in a ship-of-war. Washington did this at the solicitation of that "sweet Mistress Mary," and the mammoth hand she had refused and ridiculed received her parting kiss as a benediction when she thanked him and bade him farewell to follow her husband to his own country.

When LaFayette visited Mount Vernon for the last time he said to Mr. Custis, the stepson of Washington, while recalling a former visit:

"You were then holding by a single finger of the good general's remarkable hand, which was all that you could do, my dear sir, at that time."

We are told of this wonderful hand that if a cast of it could have been preserved to be exhibited in these days of physical degeneracy it would be said to belong to a being of a fabulous age. His unusual size was not, however, a distinction of the age in which he lived, but, taken together with his breadth of vision, his qualities as a leader and his executive ability, it made him in all requirements a great man. Napoleon I. was a pygmy when compared to Washington, but he greatly admired the man who could so successfully administer national affairs through a terrible crisis to a safe conclusion, and as he lamented his own small stature did he in proportion admire Washington's. Whenever he met one of our countrymen abroad he was certain to ask: "How is the greatest American, Washington?"

THE FAITH OF WASHINGTON

Not Only a Believer in Prayer, But a Man of Prayer.

Washington was reverent of everything that was sacred. The impression that the profane use of the name of God made upon him is shown by this order, issued while he was commander in chief of the army:

Headquarters, Moor's House West Point, July 29, 1778. Many and pointed orders have been issued against the unmeaning and abominable custom of swearing, notwithstanding which, with much regret the general observes that it prevails, it is possible, more than ever; his feelings are continually wounded by the oaths and imprecations of the soldiers whenever he is in hearing of them. The name of the Being from whose bountiful goodness we are permitted to exist and enjoy the comforts of life is incessantly imprecated and profaned in a manner as wanton as it is shocking.

For the sake, therefore, of religion, decency, and order, the general hopes and trusts that officers of every rank will use their influence and authority to check a vice which is as unprofitable as it is wicked and shameful.

Words that ring as true as when they were uttered more than a hundred years ago. Washington was not only a believer in prayer, but a man of prayer. Many instances of this are related. How on one occasion he sought shelter from a storm for the night at a house where he was unknown, and where, owing to the dangers of the war, he was received with fear and doubting, but when, after retiring to his room, the woman heard him in prayer, she exclaimed to her husband: "Now I know that he is a good man, and we are safe." The story of the sufferings of the little American army through that darksome winter at Valley Forge will be told as long as our history endures. And as part of it will endure the oft-told incident of how as the good old Quaker owner of the house Washington occupied as headquarters was out alone one day he was startled by hearing a solemn voice. Going toward it he saw a horse tied to a sapling tree, and then, half hidden by a thicket of underbrush, Washington himself on his knees in prayer, his cheeks wet with his tears, as solitary and apart he prayed for help and guidance in that hour of extremity. It is not strange that good Mr. Potts should have been greatly moved by the sight, as hurrying home, with tears in his own eyes, he told his wife of what he had seen, adding: "If there is any man on earth that the Lord will listen to it is George Washington; and I feel a presentiment that under such a commander there is no doubt but in the end we will establish our independence, and that God in His providence hath willed it so."—Adele E. Thompson, in Chicago Advance.

WASHINGTON THE UNIFIER.

He Showed the Thirteen Colonies the Pathway to National Life—The Ideal American.

It seems no wonder at all, that, after six years of terrible political distress, under the articles of confederation, Washington should be called to preside at the constitutional convention in Philadelphia. Characteristically, Washington, when summoned, was in western Virginia seeking how he might open up his lines of communication and natural highways by which the east and the west could be bound together, and the way made clear for that great procession westward of our advancing race which he foresaw. He was the great balance-wheel of the Philadelphia assembly of 1787, when sectional interests threatened disruption. He was the anchor of the ship of state when storms arose.

Made president, says the Sunday School Times, he, under God, showed us the true pathway of national life. It is difficult to realize the division, the weakness, the lack of coherence, in the country and the government, over a century ago. We were a "backwoods nation," between the mountains and the sea. The states were jealous of the each other and of the central government. Parties, such as they were, had inherited all the viciousness of the old organizations in Great Britain. The people were not welded together. One set wanted to be pro-French and the other pro-British.

When "Citizen Genet" came over to get men, ships, and money, and also to play, for selfish purposes, upon the gratitude which our fathers felt for French aid in the revolution, Washington took the right stand of neutrality. He showed that we were not to be hypenated Americans—as the manner of some is, even in this day. He taught that the true patriot should be, not Irish or Dutch or Italian or Franco or British-American, but Americans without adjectives or political labels or printers' expedients. To Patrick Henry, Washington wrote: "I want an American character, that the powers of Europe may be convinced that we are for ourselves, and not for others." He wrote again: "My ardent desire is to keep the United States free from political connection with every other country, to see them independent of all, and under the influence of none."

No wonder that Washington left money to establish a national university, for he wrote: "It has always been a source of regret to me to see the youth of these United States sent to foreign countries for the purposes of education, often before their minds are formed."

Thus this wise and great man, who foresaw our national future, gave us, under God, the true principles of unity. Our fathers listened to his voice, pondered, took "sober second thought," and decided aright and happily for themselves and us. Instead of scattering and degenerating, our country began to consolidate and grow. The nation, obeying the true instinct of development, began to expand toward the west. A great stream of population moved over the Alleghenies and to the Pacific. Now we look farther, yet let us remember.

It is good to notice, in the latest and scholarly "Washington the Soldier," by Gen. Henry B. Carrington, of the United States regular army, that the baseless legend of the commander in chief's profanity at Monmouth is effectually disproved. We may be ever grateful to God for the leader he gave us. Greater even than Washington the engineer, soldier, statesman, or sage, was Washington the American, the unifier.

The Pillars of Happiness.

Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports. In vain would that man claim the tribute of patriotism who should labor to subvert these great pillars of human happiness—these firmest props of the duties of men and citizens. To The Shade of Washington

By RICHARD ALSOP.

[From "A Poem: Sacred to the Memory of George Washington, Late President," etc., written in the year 1800.]

EXALTED Chief—in thy superior mind
What vast resources, what various talents joined!
Tempered with social virtue's milder rays,
There patriot worth diffused a purer blaze;
Formed to command respect, esteem inspired.

Mild statesmen grave, or midst the social choir,
With equal skill the sword or pen to wield.
In council great, unequalled in the field,
Mild glittering courts or rural walks to please.
Polite with grandeur, dignified with ease;
Before the splendors of thy high renown
How faded the glowworm lusters of a crown,
How sink diminished in that radiance lost
The glare of conquest, and of power the boast.

Let Greece her Alexander's deeds proclaim,
Or Caesar's triumphs gild the Roman name,
Stripped of the dazzling glare around them cast.

Shrinks at their crime humanity aghast;
With equal claim to honor's glorious meed
See Attila his course of havoc lead!
O'er Asia realms, in one vast ruin hurled,
See furious Zingis' bloody flag unfurled.
On base far different from the conqueror's claim.

Rests the unsullied column of thy fame;
His on the woes of millions proudly based,
With blood cemented and with tears defaced;

Thine on a nation's welfare fixed sublime,
By freedom strengthened and revered by time.

He, as the Comet, whose portentous light
Spread baleful splendor o'er the glooms of night,
With chill amazement fills the startled breast.

While storms and earthquakes dire its course attest,
And Nature trembles, lest in chaos hurled,
Should sink the tottering fabric of the world.

Thou, like the Sun, whose kind propitious ray
Goes the glad morn and lights the fields of day.

Disperses the wintry storm, the chilling rain,
With rich abundance clothes the smiling plain.

Gives all creation to rejoice around,
And life and light extends o'er nature's utmost bound.

Though shone thy life a model bright of praise,
Not less the example bright thy death portrays.

When, plunged in deepest woe, around thy bed,
Each eye was fixed, despairing sunk each head.

While Nature struggled with severest pain,
And scarce could life's last lingering powers retain;

In that dread moment, awfully serene,
No trace of suffering marked thy placid mien.

No groan, no murmuring plaint, escaped thy tongue,
No lowering shadows on thy brow were hung;

But calm in Christian hope, undamp'd with fear,
Thou sawest the high reward of virtue near.

On that bright mead in surest trust reposed,
As thy firm hand thine eyes exiring closed.

Pleased to the will of Heaven resigned thy breath,
And smiled as Nature's struggles closed in death.

ELIZABETH came down the walk with hands folded complacently and shining eyes fixed on the hem of her frock. She walked sedately, because her sense of dignity forbade skipping for joy, as her feelings inclined. No wonder delight possessed her. For the first time, in the two years since father had gone to the war, she wore a gown and cloak and hood without a patch, to say nothing of stout new shoes and warm homespun petticoats.

Mrs. Noble, the captain's wife, had noted with kindly eyes that hard for were approaching a lonely part of the way, and Elizabeth walked faster; the man kept close behind her. She started to run, but before she had gone far his hand was on her shoulder.

"Not so fast, little mistress. You must walk with me now, and I will take your hand, to make sure of you. Do not fear. You will not be harried if you are a good child."

Nothing more was said, and a little farther down the street he led her into a house. There were three men in British uniform in the room they entered. They whispered together a few minutes and then the oldest one, a kindly looking man, said:

"Where is your father, child?"

"With Washington, sir," came Elizabeth's answer promptly.

"Ah, yes! But when did he visit you last?" said the soldier.

"Never since he went away, sir." The men whispered together again. One of them seemed angry.

"I tell you the little rebel is lying," he said, fiercely.

"Nay; but perhaps the captain's shrewd wife does not let the child know when he comes home," said another.

Then Elizabeth understood instantly why she had been brought here. She had come from Mrs. Noble's house and was dressed in little Miss Eleanor's clothes. The men had taken her for Miss Eleanor and were trying to find out about Capt. Noble.

In his loyal heart she resolved never, never in her life to betray her friends, not even if the soldiers killed her for her silence. If she spoke not all she must tell the truth, for she had been taught that a lie was so terrible a thing that no respectable person would tell one under any consideration.

"Tell us how your father looks," said one of the men.

"He is taller than you and far more comely," said Elizabeth, promptly. "He has blue eyes and brown, curling hair and a mustache."

"I believe the child lies," cried the suspicious one again. "I have been told that the captain is dark."

"Sir," cried Elizabeth, "I would not tell a lie to save my life, nor for anything in the world."

"You are over-suspicious, Dale," said the elder man. "These little rebels are strictly brought up and regard truth as a jewel. Here, child, will you affirm, as God is hearing you, that you will tell only the truth?"

"I will," said Elizabeth, pale and trembling.

"At what time did your mother send you to bed last night?"

"Very early, sir; before eight o'clock."

"Did you hear anything after you were in bed?"

"Yes, sir."

"What was it?"

"I was awakened by hearing someone ride up to the door."

"Did your mother talk to the person?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did the voice sound like your father's?"

"No, sir. How could it be my father? He is with Washington."

"Did the person come in?"

"No, sir."

"Are you quite sure?"

"Yes, sir. I heard him ride away again."

"The slippery rebel has escaped us again," muttered one of the men.

"Who do you suppose this person was?" the questioner went on.

"I think it was Peter, the fish man," said Elizabeth; "he often stops on his way home to sell mother some fish."

One of the men laughed at this, and one muttered an oath. After conferring together for a moment they prepared to go out.

"We will go straight to Squire Thornton's," said one; "if he left home last night he is almost sure to be there."

"Please may I go, sirs?" said Elizabeth.

"No," said one, "you must remain here till we return, and they went out, locking the door after them."

Poor Elizabeth sat there for some time fearing to move, but when the dusk began to deepen, she resolved to try to escape. This was no hard task to the active child, for the windows were unbarred and she soon climbed to the ground. Without pausing, she ran to Mrs. Noble's house. The lady herself came to the door.

"Dear Mrs. Noble," Elizabeth gasped, "I don't know whether the captain is here or not, but if he is don't let him go to Squire Thornton's to-night, because the British soldiers are going there to look for him."

Mrs. Noble drew her in the house and soon heard the whole story. She left the room quickly and when she returned she folded Elizabeth in her arms and said: "Heaven bless thee, my child! Then in a moment she added: 'But you must go home now. Your mother will surely be anxious about you.'"

Back Pampy, a faithful house servant, was sent as an escort this time, and Elizabeth reached home in safety. They found the mother greatly concerned over her daughter's long absence, but when she had told the story of her experience, the mother voiced her thankfulness, and praised Elizabeth for her tact and for her firmness in telling naught but the whole truth.

From that day on Mrs. Noble was Elizabeth's firm friend, and the little girl's name at the big house was "The other Miss Eleanor"—Ladies' World, New York.

Washington on Partisanship.

There is an opinion in free countries that parties are useful checks upon the administration of the government and serve to keep alive the spirit of liberty. This, within certain bounds, probably is true, and in governments of a monarchical cast patriotism may look with indulgence, if not with favor, upon the spirit of party. But in those of popular character—in governments purely elective—it is a spirit not to be encouraged. From their natural tendency it is certain there will always be enough of this spirit for every salutary purpose. And there being consistent danger of excess the effort ought to be by force of public opinion to mitigate and assuage it.—Washington, in His Farewell Address.

There patriot worth diffused a purer blaze;
Formed to command respect, esteem inspired,
Midst statesmen grave, or midst the social choir,
With equal skill the sword or pen to wield,
In council great, unequalled in the field,
Mid glittering courts or rural walks to please,
Polite with grandeur, dignified with ease;
Before the splendours of thy high renown
How faded the glowworm lusters of a crown,
How sink diminished in that radiance lost
The glare of conquest, and of power the boast.
Let Greece her Alexander's deeds proclaim,
Or Caesar's triumphs gild the Roman name,
Stripped of the dazzling glare around them cast,
Shrinks at their crime humanity aghast;
With equal claim to honour's glorious meed
See Attila his course of havoc lead!
O'er Asia realms, in one vast ruin hurled,
See furious Zirkis' bloody flag unfurled.
On base far different from the conqueror's claim
Reeds the unsullied column of thy fame:
His on the woes of millions proudly based,
With blood cemented and with tears defaced;
Thine on a nation's welfare fixed sublime,
By freedom strengthened and revered by time.
He, as the Comet, whose portentous light
Spread baleful splendour o'er the glooms of night,
With chill amazement fills the startled breast,
While storms and earthquakes dire its course attest,
And Nature trembles, lest in chaos hurled,
Should sink the tottering fabric of the world.
Thou, like the Sun, whose kind propitious ray
Opens the glad morn and lights the fields of day,
Dispelst the wintry storm, the chilling rain,
With rich abundance clothes the smiling plain.
Givest all creation to rejoice around,
And life and light extends o'er nature's utmost bound.

Though alone thy life a model bright of prate,
Not less the example bright thy death portrays.
When, plunged in deepest woe, around thy bed,
Each eye was fixed, despairing sunk each head,
While Nature struggled with severest pain,
And scarce could life's last lingering powers retain;
In that dread moment, awfully serene,

No trace of suffering marked thy placid mien,
No groan, no murmuring plaint, escaped thy tongue,
No lowering shadows on thy brows were hung,
But calm in Christian hope, undamped with fear,
Thou sawest the high reward of virtue near.
On that bright meed in surest trust reposed,
As thy firm hand thine eyes expiring closed,
Pleased, to the will of Heaven resigned thy breath,
And smiled as Nature's struggles closed in death.

ELIZABETH came down the walk with hands folded complacently and shining eyes fixed on the hem of her frock. She walked acutely, because her sense of dignity forbade skipping for joy, as her feelings inclined. No wonder delight possessed her. For the first time, in the two years since father had gone to the war, she wore a gown and cloak and hood without a patch, to say nothing of stout new shoes and warm home-apron petticoats.

Mrs. Noble, the captain's wife, had noted with kindly eyes that hard forwere approaching a lonely part of the way, and Elizabeth walked faster; the man kept close behind her. She started to run, but before she had gone far his hand was on her shoulder.

"Not so fast, little mistress. You must walk with me now, and I will take your hand, to make sure of you. Do not fear. You will not be harmed if you are a good child."

Nothing more was said, and a little farther down the street he led her into a house. There were three men in British uniform in the room they entered. They whispered together a few tune had assailed the absent soldier's little family. Her latest bounty had been to invite Elizabeth to the house, whence she issued clad in a complete outfit of little Miss Eleanor's garments. Elizabeth's heart was full of grateful thoughts.

"NOT SO FAST, LITTLE MISTRESS. YOU MUST WALK WITH ME NOW."

"I do so desire to serve Mrs. Noble," she said, softly. Then her mind went back to a strange thing that occurred. While Mrs. Noble was fitting the garments on her they had heard the voices of two men in an adjoining room. The lady went quickly to the door and the voices became silent. Who could they be? Capt. Noble was with Washington; it could not be he. And yet rumor spoke of the daring and skill of the captain in venturing into this very city, British-possessed as it was, and gathering valuable information for his beloved general.

But Elizabeth's attention was attracted at this moment by a man who seemed to be following her. She was a brave, quick-witted child, but her heart beat faster as she perceived that the man was in British uniform. They minutes and then the oldest one, a kindly-looking man, said: "Where is your father, child?" "With Washington, sir," came Elizabeth's answer promptly.

"Ah, yes! But when did he visit you last?" said the soldier.

"Never since he went away, sir." The men whispered together again. One of them seemed angry.

"I tell you the little rebel is lying," he said, fiercely.

"Nay; but perhaps the captain's shrewd wife does not let the child know when he comes home," said another.

Then Elizabeth understood instantly why she had been brought here. She had come from Mrs. Noble's house and was dressed in little Miss Eleanor's clothes. The men had taken her for Miss Eleanor and were trying to find out about Capt. Noble. In her loyal heart she resolved never, never to betray her friends, not even if the soldiers killed her for her silence. If she spoke at all she must tell the truth, for she had been taught that a lie was so terrible a thing that no respectable person would tell one under any consideration.

"Tell us how your father looks," said one of the men.

"He is taller than you and far more comely," said Elizabeth, promptly. "He has blue eyes and brown, curling hair and a moustache."

"I believe the child lies," cried the suspicious one again. "I have been told that the captain is dark."

"Sir," cried Elizabeth, "I would not tell a lie to save my life, nor for anything in the world."

"You are over-suspicious, Dale," said the elder man. "These little rebels are strictly brought up and regard truth as a jewel. Here, child, will you affirm, as God is hearing you, that you will tell only the truth?"

"I will," said Elizabeth, pale and trembling.

"At what time did your mother send you to bed last night?"

"Very early, sir; before eight o'clock."

"Did you hear anything after you were in bed?"

"Yes, sir."

"What was it?"

"I was awakened by hearing someone ride up to the door."

"Did your mother talk to the person?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did the voice sound like your father's?"

"No, sir. How could it be my father? He is with Washington."

"Did the person come in?"

"No, sir."

"Are you quite sure?"

"Yes, sir. I heard him ride away again."

"The slippery rebel has escaped us again," muttered one of the men.

"Who do you suppose this person was?" the questioner went on.

"I think it was Peter, the fish man," said Elizabeth; "he often stops on his way home to sell mother some fish."

One of the men laughed at this, and one muttered an oath. After conferring together for a moment they prepared to go out.

"We will go straight to Squire Thornton's," said one; "if he left home last night he is almost sure to be there."

"Please may I go, sir?" said Elizabeth.

"No," said one, "you must remain here till we return," and they went out, locking the door after them.

Poor Elizabeth sat there for some time fearing to move, but when the dusk began to deepen, she resolved to try to escape. This was no hard task to the active child, for the windows were unbarred and she soon climbed to the ground. Without pausing, she ran to Mrs. Noble's house. The lady herself came to the door.

"Dear Mrs. Noble," Elizabeth gasped, "I don't know whether the captain is here or not, but if he is don't let him go to Squire Thornton's to-night, because the British soldiers are going there to look for him."

Mrs. Noble drew her in the house and soon heard the whole story. She left the room quickly and when she returned she folded Elizabeth in her arms and said: "Heaven bless thee, my child." Then in a moment she added: "But you must go home now. Your mother will surely be anxious about you."

Black Pompey, a faithful house servant, was sent as an escort this time, and Elizabeth reached home in safety. They found the mother greatly concerned over her daughter's long absence, but when she had told the story of her experience, the mother voiced her thankfulness, and praised Elizabeth for her tact and for her firmness in telling naught but the whole truth.

From that day on Mrs. Noble was Elizabeth's firm friend, and the little girl's name at the big house was "The other Miss Eleanor."—Ladies' World, New York.

Washington on Partisanship. There is an opinion in free countries that parties are useful checks upon the administration of the government and serve to keep alive the spirit of liberty. This, within certain bounds, probably is true, and in governments of a monarchical cast patriotism may look with indulgence, if not with favor, upon the spirit of party. But in those of popular character—in governments purely elective—it is a spirit not to be encouraged. From their natural tendency it is certain there will always be enough of this spirit for every salutary purpose. And there being consistent danger of excess the effort ought to be by force of public opinion to mitigate and assuage it.—Washington, in His Farewell Address.

GOVERNOR OF OREGON Uses Pe-ru-na For Colds in His Family and Grip.

CAPITOL BUILDING, SALEM, OREGON.

A Letter From the Executive Office of Oregon.

Pe-ru-na is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Letters of congratulation and commendation testifying to the merits of Pe-ru-na as a catarrh remedy are pouring in from every State in the Union. Dr. Hartman is receiving hundreds of such letters daily. All classes write these letters, from the highest to the lowest. The outdoor laborer, the indoor artisan, the clerk, the editor, the statesman, the preacher—all agree that Pe-ru-na is the catarrh remedy of the age. The stage and rostrum, recognizing catarrh as their greatest enemy, are especially enthusiastic in their praise and testimony. Any man who wishes perfect health must be entirely free from catarrh. Catarrh is well-nigh universal; almost omnipresent. Pe-ru-na is the only absolute safeguard known. A cold is the beginning of catarrh. To prevent colds, to cure colds, is to prevent catarrh out of its victims. Pe-ru-na not only cures catarrh, but prevents. Every household should be supplied with this great remedy for coughs, colds and so forth. The Governor of Oregon is an ardent admirer of Pe-ru-na. He keeps it continually in the house. In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman he says:

LONDON VERDICT IS St. Jacobs Oil

If you have Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Lumbago, or Sciatica, you immediately apply this sovereign remedy, St. Jacobs Oil, which positively cures the worst of these cases. It penetrates instantly to the very seat of the disease, and removes the cause of pain.
Mr. HENRY JOHN BARLOW, of 4, Staple Inn Buildings, Holborn Bars, W. C., said—"I had rheumatism in my feet and legs, which became so bad that I was hardly able to walk. St. Jacobs Oil removed all pain, and completely cured me."
Mrs. WOLFFENBUTER, matron of More Street Home for Poor, Crippled, and Orphan Boys, 17, Queen Street, Edgware Road, said—"St. Jacobs Oil has been used in the Home, and is powerful in relieving neuralgia and general rheumatism."
Mr. CHARLES CARTWRIGHT, of No. 7, Alfred Place, Bedford Square, W. C., said—"Having for years been a great sufferer from rheumatism in my limbs, I used St. Jacobs Oil, which cured me directly, after other remedies had signally failed."
The above are only three out of the thousands of cases which have been permanently cured of rheumatism by the timely use of St. Jacobs Oil; therefore if you suffer from pain and do not immediately apply St. Jacobs Oil.

Patriotic Blood.

Out in Cincinnati there is an Irishman who, like many other good Irishmen, is firm in his loyalty to his native land. One morning not long ago he was at work near the top of a telegraph pole, painting it a bright green, when the paint slipped and splashed on the sidewalk. A few minutes later another Irishman came along. He looked at the paint, then at his countryman on the ladder, coming down the pole, and inquired, with anxiety in his tone: "Doherty, Doherty, how ye had a him-orrhage?"—Youth's Companion.

The Medicine of Medicines.

Reputation is the only standard by which medicinal preparations can be judged. By such a standard PRICKLY ASH BITTERS ranks at the head of the list of meritorious articles. For more than thirty years this great remedy has retained its place in popular favor on its record as a successful Kidney tonic, Liver stimulant and System cleanser. It has proved its value in instances innumerable both as a CURE for the serious diseases that attack the Kidneys, and as a general purifying and strengthening tonic and regulator. In Digestive Troubles it is of the greatest efficacy, as it drives out badly digested food, tones the stomach, relieves heart palpitation and bloated feeling. Removes Constipation and permanently cures a constipated habit, Purifies the Blood, Clears the Complexion of Sallowiness, Pimples or Blotches, Promotes good Appetite, Sound Sleep and Cheerful Spirits. MINING NEWS

The Carnegie steel mills at Pittsburgh, Homestead, Pa., and other points, do not use our fluor spar in the production of steel. The Pennsylvania Salt Company, who are large producers of nitrate of soda, soda ash, and other chemicals, are the largest importers of kyanite in the world. Kyanite comes from Greenland, and is a fluoride of soda and aluminum. It has a grayish white or yellowish brown color and a glistening, vitreous luster. The Carnegie people use the fluoride which is left after the soda, etc., is extracted, and in that way obtain the same results at a considerably less expense.

It is almost impossible to obtain from the practical steel makers just what effect the addition of fluor spar has on the metal itself. In fact those whom one would suppose to be thoroughly familiar with its use, frankly confess they don't know just what action the fluoride has. They do know, however, that the dense, heavy slag which rises to the surface in the open hearth furnaces is almost immediately thinned and made liquid by the use of a few shovels of the fluor spar, while the "freeze up," so called, in a blast furnace, is opened at once by a barrow load of fluor spar.

We know, therefore, that fluor spar must be a very perfect fluxing material. In the thinning or making liquid of the heaviest, most sluggish slag that the iron furnaces produce it acts like magic. In the blast furnace choke or freeze it performs a like service. It would seem, therefore, that a small portion of fluor spar, added in proper proportion to the iron ore, limestone, coke and coal with which the furnaces are charged, would very largely increase the production of iron or steel. This proposition is based upon the facts already stated, and the further fact that such a complete fluxing material must materially hasten the melting of the ore and in that cheapen its production to a considerable extent as the charges would require less limestone and less coke and coal. In this event more heats would be obtained every twenty-four hours, and consequently a greater tonnage of either iron or steel would be produced at practically the same expense.

There is such a dense ignorance displayed in the use of fluor spar among the producers of iron, steel and other metals that it would be an act of charity for some one better qualified than the writer to issue a large sized volume on the use and abuse of fluor spar, and present a copy to every chemist, metallurgist and foreman who has to do with the production of iron, steel, copper, zinc and lead throughout the country.

The work "Fluorspar" to the zinc furnace man, for example, acts in a somewhat similar manner that a red rag does to the maddened animal in the old fashioned bull fights. He will have none of it. Why, he don't know. Somebody has told him that it will ruin his furnaces or retorts, practically eat them up in some quite unknown manner, but he is sure it will do it. He never has actually known any bad result from its use but he is afraid there might be. He knows that he is smelting zinc ore in almost precisely the same manner that was done in King Solomon's time, not an improvement since the days of the building of the Temple that really changes anything, and the man is content; what his grandfather did is good enough for him. The action of fluorine in purification, in the elimination of foreign substances, in keeping his retorts clean and freeing them from slag cuts no figure; he simply won't give it a trial. You know such people.

The traffic by the river route bids fair to be quite extensive the coming season. Fire clay can be loaded on barges at Smithland, towed to St. Louis by the way of Cairo and the Mississippi river, and loaded on cars at St. Louis for one dollar per short ton.

Arrangements are being perfected to transport fluor spar by the barge load to Pittsburgh from points adjacent to the Ohio river. It is possible Cleveland, O., may be reached via Pittsburgh by an all water route also.

It might be well for the zinc producers of this district to correspond with the "Edgar Zinc Company," Pittsburgh, Pa. This company is a part of the steel trust known as the Federal Steel Company, and so far as we know has no connection with the New Jersey Zinc combination. The saving in freight via the Ohio river to Pittsburgh would be quite an item, especially if transported in barges.

We hope to give a description of the noted zinc mine of New Jersey, with its present status as regards production of ore, quality and cost of production, and dressing it for market, in a future issue of the PRESS. So much has been said about this wonderful property that we have made arrangements to have a careful and perfectly reliable statement regarding its value as an ore and its daily output for the benefit of our own miners and prospectors.

The Chicago Tribune says: "A prize fiddling contest is booked for Mineral Point, Wis., next week." The gentlemen at Mineral Point must express their joy in some way over their fluor spar deal at Marion. Why not fiddle?

The dinner to be given in honor of Prince Henry at the White House is causing President Roosevelt a great deal of anxiety. It would have been a mighty good thing for the president to have had a few of these thoughts before extending his dinner invitation to Mr. B. K. T. Wash-t-n.

Some eighteen months ago a very good quality of oil was struck on Dudley Wallingford's farm, which is almost within the city limits, at a depth of 150 feet. Mr. Wallingford did not admire the odor of kerosene and shut it off. Now it is proposed to bore a deep well on the same land with every prospect of unearthing a gusher.

Barnum's Monkeys

"All well—all happy—lots of fun". That is the regular report from the monkey cage of Barnum's Circus ever since the keepers began dosing the monkeys with Scott's Emulsion. Consumption was carrying off two thirds of them every year and the circus had to buy new ones.

One day a keeper accidentally broke a bottle of Scott's Emulsion near the monkey cage and the monkeys eagerly lapped it up from the floor. This suggested the idea that it might do them good. Since then the monkeys have received regular doses and the keepers report very few deaths from consumption. Of course it's cheaper to buy Scott's Emulsion than new monkeys—and that suits the circus men.

Consumption in monkeys and in man is the same disease. If you have it or are threatened with it can you take the hint?

SAVED HER CHILD'S LIFE.

"In three weeks our chubby little boy was champed by Pneumonia almost to a skeleton," writes Mrs W. Watkins, of Pleasant City, O. "A terrible cough set in that, in spite of a physician's treatment, for several weeks grew worse every day. Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption and our darling was sound and well. We are sure that this grand medicine saved his life." Millions know it's the only cure for coughs, colds and all lung diseases. 11 K Woods & Co guarantee satisfaction. 50c and $1; trial bottles free.

DYCUSBURG.

Born to W. E. Charles and wife, Feb. 13th, a boy.

The stemmery of Cassiday & Co. ignited Saturday in the classing room from heated stove pipes. The fire occurred at noon, while the hands were not in the building. By strenuous efforts the fire was extinguished after burning through the roof.
